Shapp 'perplexed' by missing $20,000 gift

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Gov. Milton J. Shapp said Friday he told a federal grand jury in Pittsburgh he could not remember what happened in 1970 to $20,000 in campaign contributions from Beaver engineer Michael Baker Jr.

"As I told the grand jury I am perplexed because despite extensive efforts we have been unable to trace what happened to these Baker contributions, but no doubt the money was turned over for use in the campaign," Shapp said.

Shapp spent more than three hours before the grand jury on Thursday, answering questions about the Baker money and other matters under investigation. He did not comment about his testimony until the Friday news conference.

His explanation was the same as the one he gave in August when the Baker contribution was first disclosed. He said he talked to 10 of his 1970 campaign aides who said they also could not remember what happened to the money.

Shapp said in addition to the Baker questions, he was asked about:

"Any knowledge I might have concerning other situations under investigation. Since these matters do not relate to me it would not be proper to enumerate them...I stated I had no personal knowledge."

— Frank Hilton, Shapp's former property and supplies secretary, who has been convicted of extortion. The questions covered a loan which Shapp helped Hilton get from the Keystone Bank by introducing him to the bank president.

— Pennsylvanians for Progress Committee, a post 1970 campaign committee set up to help pay off the costs of his election. He said he was asked "why it was formed and what were its activities."

— A $10,000 cash contribution to Shapp's post-election fund raising campaign from Arthur Rooney, owner of the Pittsburgh Steelers and a racing association. Shapp said he did not know of the contribution until it was reported in the papers.

Baker testified before the grand jury last summer under a grant of immunity, and said that on two separate occasions, he personally handed envelopes containing $10,000 in small bills to Shapp for his campaign.

But the Baker contributions are not listed in campaign records that currently exist. Shapp said the fact that it is not in current reports does not mean it was never listed as a contribution.

"There were about 130 statewide regional and county committees in operation supporting my 1970 campaign and few if any of these records exist today," Shapp said.

Shapp said he had a policy in 1970 and 1974 of not checking campaign contributions because of a legal battle he was involved in after his unsuccessful 1966 campaign, when he handled his own finance reports.

The governor said again that he has the cleanest administration in history, that he has run an open government, and that he has ferreted out corruption wherever it was discovered.

"This is not to say that each and every one of the over 100,000 state employees is free of misconduct. Nor is it to say that my election campaigns were free of all the pitfalls traditionally associated with American politics," Shapp said.

"Where we find appearances or allegations of wrongdoing, we have and we will conduct thorough investigations."

Record crop prompts move

Ford lifts grain trade ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Armed with prospects of record corn and wheat crops, President Ford Friday lifted a ban on grain shipments to Poland and said he expected to do the same for Russia soon.

The Agriculture Department's crop reporting board, basing its forecasts on Oct. 1 conditions, estimated the corn crop at a record 5.737 billion bushels and the wheat crop at 2.138 billion bushels, also a new high.

The corn estimate, 50 million bushels above last month's forecast, had been awaited as a vital clue to whether further grain sales could be permitted to the Soviet Union and Poland this year.

Shipments to those nations were suspended in the wake of protests by congressmen and labor leaders that they would drive up the price of food in the United States. Also, Ford said he wanted time to negotiate a long-term sales agreement with the Soviets to avoid the massive and sporadic purchases of the past that have destabilized the domestic market.

Chief Agriculture Department economist Don Paarlberg told a news conference the record crop levels will be enough to "meet domestic need, increase our exports and still modestly increase our carryover at the end of the market year."

He also said the large crops should ensure that any changes in food prices will be "small, favorable to the consumer and probably to the right side of the decimal point."

In Detroit, where he was making a one-day visit, Ford said the "excellent crop forecast" led him to lift the embargo on grain sales to Poland, which has been in effect about one month.

Ford said negotiations with the Soviet Union on a five-year Soviet grain purchase contract "are continuing and we hope to conclude an agreement in the very near future."

Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz was less optimistic than

Ford over when the Soviet grain shipment embargo, in effect since August, would actually be lifted. He said U.S. negotiators have agreed on "substantive matters" in a proposed longterm grain purchasing pact and "I don't expect it to be too difficult to iron out the rest."

Butz conceded "it may not be possible" to have the pact signed by mid-October when the moratorium was supposed to end. He denied, however, that the grain deal was being held up by failure to reach an acceptable pact bringing Russian oil to the U.S. at "favorable" prices.

"I think it's just been more difficult to negotiate these things than anticipated."

Butz the Soviet embargo will "stay in place" until the sales agreement is actually initiated.

The estimate for corn, a key raw material for producers of meat, poultry, milk and other livestock foods, was slightly above the previous 5.647 billion bushel record set in 1973 and was 1 per cent larger than the Sept. 1 estimate and 23 per cent bigger than last year's weather-ravaged crop.

The figures also appeared to harden administration forecasts that 1975 retail food prices would average 9 per cent above 1974 compared with hikes of 14.5 per cent in the two previous years.

State tax cards torn 'in error'

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Revenue Secretary George Mowod said Friday the destruction of sales tax records that a grand jury might want to see was a mistake, but the information is still on file in the department's computers.

Mowod, who is the target of a Pittsburgh federal grand jury kickback investigation, said he learned only last week the records had been put through a shredder on Aug. 13.

"The whole damn thing was a mistake," Mowod said. "The records were on their way to the state archives but a clerk shredded them instead of some old paper we wanted to get rid of."

He said all of the data on the cards has been transferred into a computer and the information is readily available to anyone who wants it.

"The attorney general has made a complete investigation and has arrived at the fact that it was a human error," Mowod said.

A federal grand jury in Pittsburgh is investigating allegations that Mowod received kickbacks for giving special treatment to subjects of sales tax investigations.

Before becoming Revenue secretary, Mowod was director of the department's sales tax bureau and headed the bureau's Pittsburgh division.

Solicitor General Vincent Yakowicz, Attorney General Robert Kane's chief deputy, conducted the investigation Friday at Gov. Milton J. Shapp's request. Yakowicz and Kane are former Revenue secretaries.

Both Mowod and Yakowicz said that because information has been stored in the computers, there is no need to keep the cards and they would have been shredded in four months anyway.

Democrats assail blind spending cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., of the Senate Finance Committee said Friday there is "no way" Congress can pledge in advance a $28 billion spending reduction to offset President Ford's proposed tax cut.

Long said Congress cannot make the commitment Ford has demanded "without knowing who it is they are cutting."

And House Ways and Means Chairman Al Ullman predicted that the combination tax cut and spending ceiling will produce "a big head of steam through the election and then quit as the new fiscal year begins."

In a speech in Portland, Ore., released through his Washington office, Ullman said the country must demand "a ceasefire on political answers to economic questions" because the country can't sustain an economic recovery until Washington maps out a program of national recovery. The country, he said, is "fed up with easy answers and gimmicks from Washington."

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Friday Congress "is thinking of new excuses every day" of why it cannot go along with Ford's proposal.

"The President thinks you ought to call this the 'can't do Congress'," said Nessen. "They can't figure out how to cut taxes $28 billion. They can't figure out how to develop new energy sources for the United States. They can't figure out how to reform some of the federal government programs which is growing bigger and bigger. They can't figure out how to deregulate natural gas."

"The President thinks there ought to be a single 'can do Congress,'" Nessen said.

In his news conference Thursday, Ford said "...I can't imagine Congress not having enough imagination to combine a spending limitation and a tax reduction."

Chileans free hostages

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — A group of Chilean exiles flew out of Argentina Friday night bound for temporary asylum in Algeria, leaving behind them five hostages they seized and held at a United Nations office for 56 hours.

The exiles and members of their families departed Buenos Aires on an Alitalia flight to Dakar, Senegal, Milan, Italy and Rome. They were expected to transfer to another plane for a connecting flight to Algiers.

The five hostages accompanied the refugees to the airport as a guarantee for their safety, U.N. sources said. All were unharmed.

An airline source said 16 Chileans and one Brazilian boarded Alitalia flight 1583. The flight lifted off at 8:45 p.m. (7:45 p.m. EDT), an hour behind schedule.

The passengers apparently included the 11 Chileans and one Brazilian holding the hostages in the U.N. office.

Sally saves a touchdown

QUEMADO, N.M. (UPI) — Sally Gutierrez got her first tackle, her first penalty and her first taste of defeat Friday.

Sally, a 5-8, 135-pound senior at Quemado High School, became the first girl in state history to play on a boys' football team as Quemado took on the Albuquerque Indian School.

Although Quemado lost again — it has yet to win a football game in two years of competition — it wasn't because Sally didn't do her part.

AIS led 20-0 when Sally, her long hair braided and her stomach full of butterflies, entered the game at the start of the fourth quarter to play defensive guard. AIS didn't score again.

"I stopped one guy from scoring on us again," said Sally in a telephone interview after the game. "I hit him just before he got to the touchdown line and I clobbered him pretty good."

A district judge in Santa Fe earlier this week ruled the State Board of Education had to allow Sally to play on the boys' squad at Quemado. The board had barred Sally from playing because one of its regulations prohibits girls from competing in contact sports with boys.

Sally's lone tackle late in the game not only saved a touchdown, but it also made up for a five-yard penalty she had received on the preceding play.

"I was really mad because the referees had just given me a five yard penalty," said Sally. "They said I was punching their players."

Relatively small for a defensive line person, Sally says she has no plans to try out for the offensive unit.

"It wasn't as rough as I thought it would be and the longer I played the easier it got," she said. "I like playing defense because I go in for the tackles."

New York's governor pleads for city funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New York Gov. Hugh L. Carey said Friday "federal money or federal troops" would be required to maintain vital city services if New York City goes into default this winter — and probably drags the state down by spring.

Carey appealed to Congress to avoid "a national policy of punishment" and approve a $5 billion loan guarantee to enable the city to borrow money again, meet its debts and avert "an economic Pearl Harbor (and) the most costly mistake in the history of this nation."

If default occurs, the Democratic governor from Brooklyn said, "inevitably, to maintain the vital life services, you'd have to put in federal money or federal troops. I can't tell you what the cost would be."

He said he feared the state — unable to refinance state agency debts — would be drawn into the first state default in U.S. history. The state's budget is smaller than the city's.

Default would mean the city could not pay its police firemen or other workers, Carey said.

Carey ran into animosity from Republicans on the Senate Banking Committee. Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., who usually votes with the liberals, said the state should increase taxes and Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., told the governor: "You're perfectly willing to spend yourself into these problems — you're not willing to tax yourself out of them."

Economic summit scheduled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and leaders of the major non-Communist industrial nations will meet at a secluded spot in France Nov. 15-17 to discuss Western economic problems in strict privacy, the White House announced Friday.

In Paris, French officials said the economic summit — an elite affair reminiscent of wartime leadership parleys — would probably take place at a 15th Century chateau in Rambouillet, 45 miles west of Paris. They said news coverage will be limited and privacy will prevail.

Diplomats described Ford's meeting with the chief executives of France, Britain, West Germany, Japan and Italy as the highest-level economic and monetary conference among world powers since World War II.

Officials in Washington said they also expected Canada's Prime Minister Pierre Elliot Trudeau to attend, although the formal announcements listed only the other six nations.

The announcements made clear the summit will address every major economic and monetary problem confronting the non-Communist West and Japan — inflation, recession, energy shortages, fluctuating currency exchange rates and aid to underdeveloped nations.

"The six leaders recognize the importance their economies have to one another and to the rest of the world," White House press secretary Ron Nessen said in a statement.

"They believe that they have a responsibility to consult with one another on achieving stable growth for their own countries and, in cooperation with other nations, greater global prosperity and improvements in the working of the international economy."

Advocates food stamp cut

Ford lambastes Congress

DETROIT (UPI) — President Ford, campaigning for the party coffers and his own future, struck out Friday at a "can't do Congress" he said will not face up to the need to cut government spending on programs ranging from food stamps to medical care.

In a seven-hour campaign-style trip to his home state of Michigan, Ford also announced that because of new government forecasts of record corn and wheat crops he was lifting the embargo on grain sales to Poland and looked forward to a long-term crop deal with the Soviet Union "in the very near future."

At a news conference, the President said that because of Friday's "excellent forecast" of crops by the U.S. Agriculture Department "I have today said Poland can resume purchases."

As for Russia, Ford said negotiations for purchases over a five-year period "are continuing and we hope to conclude an agreement in the very near future."

But he has not lifted the ban on sales to Russia, Ford said, because it gives the United States a bargaining point in its bid to buy Soviet oil.

"They have the commodity and we want it," Ford said. "We have the grain. We want a five-year or longer term (of sales), we want good arrangements and I think we are coming close...."

Ford put his stamp of approval on the "can't do Congress" tag advanced earlier in the day by Press Secretary Ron Nessen — Ford called it "objective" — and said his administration had a number of "target areas" for federal spending cuts.

"I believe the food stamp program can be substantially reduced," he told a news conference, because there are "many illustrations of abuse" such as ineligible persons receiving stamps.

In the medical field he said there are "many abuses" and "costs have escalated unbelievably in the medical field where the federal government makes payments. I think there can be tightening up in that area."

Ford saved most of his remarks on his feud with Congress for an evening speech to a $200,000, 4,000-person GOP fund-raising dinner in Cobo Hall, calling once more for passage of a $28 billion income tax cut tied to a ceiling on federal spending.

Ford repeated that Congress must put a $395 billion limit on spending for the 1977 fiscal year and said, "I will not hesitate to veto any new bills which violate this ceiling."

He said years of "big spending" programs have produced "a Federal monstrosity."

Taxpayers must be given relief, Ford said, because "America's greatness was not achieved by taxing people to their limits."

The President said the fight against unemployment, inflation and recession has been successful but the battle has not been won.

"We must not delude ourselves," he said. "Just beneath the surface there are still deep-seated problems in our economy."

The cause of the problems is big spending in Washington, Ford said.

"Congressional critics of my proposals to cut taxes and spending call them political," he said. "But politics is government — government with the consent of the governed — for the good of all Americans ..."

"What could be more political than proposals of the big spenders in Congress to reduce taxes and increase spending to help special interest groups? That's the most obvious politics — politics concerned only with the next election."

Israel gives up oil field

By United Press International

Israel signed the final document of the interim peace agreement with Egypt Friday and immediately began putting the pact into effect by relinquishing control of the Ras Sudar oil field on the Gulf of Suez.

The 10-minute signing ceremony at U.N. headquarters in Jerusalem signified official full acceptance of the pact negotiated by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger last summer.

The signing came just hours after the U.S. Senate approved legislation permitting American civilians to man electronic early warning stations between the forces of both sides in the Sinai Desert. The House of Representatives approved the proposal Wednesday.

Egyptian government sources in Cairo expressed satisfaction with both the U.S. Senate vote and the signing in Jerusalem.

"We are glad all these procedures have been completed," a government source said. "We look forward to smooth implementation."

As the first step in implementing the pact, Israeli officials at the Ras Sudar oil field officially turned the installation over to three American technicians. Egyptian oilmen were expected to move into the area next month.

In Washington, the White House announced that President Ford would meet with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat Oct. 26 to talk about strengthening ties.

U.S. agency opposes enforcing campaign law

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department argued in an unusual brief filed in the Supreme Court late Friday that the Federal Elections Commission should not have been given power to enforce campaign laws because it is a branch of Congress.

Solicitor General Robert H. Bork argued that it actually is too early for a true constitutional test because the commission has not created a live issue by trying to use its broad campaign police powers.

But Bork said if the Supreme Court does make a ruling on other issues relating to the commission, it should also decide that Congress in the 1974 Federal Election Campaign Act gave the commission powers the Constitution reserves for the executive branch of government.

Bork's brief contended it is the Justice Department itself that should be the enforcer of the campaign laws.

Sen. James L. Buckley, Cons.-N. Y., former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., and other plaintiffs have challenged the act on a broad array of other constitutional issues.

They said the act violates constitutional rights including free speech and association by placing limits on donations and expenditures, requiring public disclosure of most campaign finances and by helping out with government money.

The Circuit Court of Appeals declined to rule whether the Election Commission's enforcement powers are constitutional but upheld all other parts of the act.

The Justice Department stirred a controversy when it announced last May 30 that it would argue the commission's executive powers are unconstitutional instead of taking its usual role of defending new laws.

The commission, set up under the act to police broad post-Watergate campaign reforms, was forced to hire its own lawyers to defend its right to act as Congress intended.

The Justice Department said the commission has been given powers to penalize non-complying candidates administratively, file civil suits against them.

Portuguese left split in battle

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Rival leftist factions duelled with guns and Molotov cocktails in streetfights in the northern industrial city of Porto Friday night.

Hospital spokesmen said at least seven persons were injured in the clashes, two of them with gunshot wounds.

Meanwhile, tens of thousands of Socialist party sympathizers held a major rally in Porto, shouting support for the Portuguese military government and its attempts to restore discipline by cracking down on rebellious troops of the far left.

Socialist party leader Mario Soares accused the Communist party of following a "double policy" by acting as "part of the government" while being "associated with minority groups who every day maneuver to bring down the government."

A Communist and far-leftist-backed rally held simultaneously drew a smaller crowd and broke up early when the demonstrators moved to a controversial artillery base on the outskirts of town.

The base, occupied by mutinous troops since Tuesday, has been the scene of violent clashes between pro-government and anti-government demonstrators.

In Lisbon, the military government's Revolutionary Council met to find a ways of curbing the political and military disorders sweeping the country.

Military authorities in Porto said a mob of persons believed by police to be Maoists attacked the headquarters of the Popular Democratic Union, a rival Communist splinter group, triggering the gunbattles and firebombings.

What's news

CIA 'skeleton' comes out

WASHINGTON — Chairman Otis Pike of the House Intelligence Committee said Friday the CIA and the Justice Department had given him classified "skeleton in the closet" documents regarding alleged improprieties by agents and illegal surveillance. Pike, D-N.Y., told reporters the documents had been turned over to him for committee use. "We have been trying to get documents with hard evidence and a particular document including the report generated by Mr. Schlesinger about alleged improprieties within the CIA," Pike said. Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger served as CIA Director for a few months in 1973 and held an in-house investigation of the agency before he left that post. Pike said the Schlesinger report was known within the agency as "the skeleton" because of what it revealed of improprieties and civil crimes committed by CIA agents.

Industrialist still captive

DUBLIN, Ireland — A Roman Catholic friar and company executives pleaded desperately Friday for more time to find a formula to free Dutch industrialist Tiede Herrema from kidnapers holding him bound and blindfolded for seven days. "There is an awful lot of work ahead before we reach a happy conclusion," said the Rev. Donal O'Mahony, the Capuchin Friar accepted as the principal go-between with the kidnapers. Herrema was believed abducted by a splinter faction of the IRA. O'Mahoney said he had been told 52-year-old Herrema was "mentally exhausted," tied hand and foot, and blindfolded with cotton stuffed in his ears since he was abducted outside his Limerick home a week ago.

UFO seekers leave children

PORTLAND, Ore. — A father has won custody of two children on grounds their mother left on a UFO voyage to outer space and never returned. Stephen Berlow was granted the two children by circuit court in Tillamook, Ore., Thursday after filing an affidavit saying the mother had chosen to leave them behind and follow the mysterious "he" and "she," the couple believed to have induced at least 20 persons in Oregon to abandon their possessions and loved ones for a flying saucer trip into eternity. The search for the missing cultists continued in the midwest after Colorado authorities said they had passed through and moved on to Nebraska.

Hirohito departs mainland

SAN FRANCISCO — Emperor Hirohito of Japan ended his mainland U.S. visit by flying to Hawaii Friday after a ride across the Golden Gate Bridge, a parade through Japan Town and a big reception. Hirohito's jetliner lifted off at San Francisco International Airport at 4:05 p.m. PDT. In a brief ceremony at the airport the Emperor was given the Boy Scout's Silver World Award in recognition of his service of exceptional character to the youth in his own country and on an international level. Some 750 Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts from the San Francisco Bay area were on hand.

Four killed in shootout

HOUSTON — Three gunmen and officers of an elite police SWAT team fought a two-hour gunbattle Friday at a rundown frame house near the Houston Ship Channel. The three gunmen and one policeman were killed and another officer wounded. The gunmen were believed to be three convicts who escaped from a Texas Department of Corrections facility at nearby Sugar Land on Wednesday and went on a two-day holdup spree across the city. The battle involved more than 100 policemen and members of the highly trained Special Weapons and Tactics assault team in combat fatigues.

N.J. state police chief named

TRENTON, N.J. — Capt. Clinton L. Pagano of Milford was named Friday to be the new superintendent of the New Jersey State Police. Pagano, 47, is a 23-year veteran of the force. He currently is an assistant supervisor for investigations, and he will assume the rank of colonel when he is confirmed by the Senate. Gov. Brendan T. Byrne said he has asked Senate President Frank J. Dodd, D-Essex, and Sen. James P. Dugan, D-Hudson, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, to bring the upper house back into session prior to Nov. 10 to act on the nomination.

Soviets blast Nobel winner

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union launched a campaign Friday to discredit Nobel Peace Prize winner Andrei D. Sakharov, accusing the dissident physicist of being anti-Soviet, unpatriotic and against East-West detente. Sakharov, who became the country's leading human rights campaigner after helping develop the hydrogen bomb for the Soviet Union, said the criticism was "unreasonable." He voiced the hope that the Nobel award would help focus world attention on the plight of Soviet political prisoners.

Lebanese truce collapses in fire

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Lebanon's third cease-fire in a month collapsed Friday in a blaze of rocket, mortar, and machinegun fire despite appeals by Syria and Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat to end the fighting.

Snipers firing from rooftops in almost every area of the city killed two more persons as darkness fell, raising the casualty toll for three weeks of clashes between right-wing Christian and left-wing Moslem gunmen to at least 469 dead and nearly 1,000 wounded.

Witnesses said heavy exchanges of mortar and machinegun fire erupted Ashrafiyeh, Naabeh, Sinn El Fil, Chiah and Ain Rummaneh, the powder keg suburbs in eastern Beirut where the rival militias have their strongholds.

At least a dozen huge explosions ripped through Karantina, a predominantly Moslem area east of Beirut port.

Small arms fire crackled through the city center and Beirut Radio warned people to stay off the streets because of heavy sniper fire.

Heavy fighting between army troops and Moslem militiamen also continued in Tripoli. Lebanon's second largest city north of the capital. Police sources said army barracks in the city came under heavy Moslem mortar fire for the third consecutive day.

The new outbreak dashed hopes of a quick end to the fighting that came after Premier Rashid Karami held talks in Damascus Thursday with Syrian President Hafez Assad and Arafat.

Patty's lawyers push for own examinations

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst's lawyers vowed Friday to continue pushing for examination of the 21-year-old newspaper heiress by their own psychiatrists despite a rebuff by a federal judge.

U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter scratched the name of psychiatrist Louis Vukosinick from a list of jail visitors proposed by the defense attorneys, but he agreed to let a private doctor make a physical examination.

"The judge has only taken the matter under consideration; he has not actually ruled on whether she can be examined by her own psychiatrists," said Al Johnson, who is handling the early stages of Miss Hearst's defense for F. Lee Bailey, her chief counsel.

He suggested the judge may have wanted three court-appointed psychiatrists to complete their examinations before allowing further tests. A court hearing on their findings is tentatively set Oct. 22.

"He may not have wanted to confuse her with additional tests until his own panel is finished," the lawyer said in a phone interview from Boston. "I have no problem with that."

But Johnson said the defense "absolutely" will continue to seek mental tests by its own experts on the 21-year-old newspaper heiress, who he contends is incompetent to aid in her own defense and needs immediate psychiatric care.

He has called for her transfer from San Mateo County Jail to the McAuley Neuropsychiatric Institute of St. Mary's Hospital, where Dr. Vukosinick is a member of the staff.

Fromme can't see FBI film

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Lynette Alice "Squeaky" Fromme was given a new co-counsel Friday, but a federal judge denied her request to visit the FBI office to look at news film of her allegedly trying to assassinate President Ford.

Chief U.S. District Court Judge Thomas J. MacBride said during a brief hearing that permitting the wispy follower of mass killer Charles Manson to travel to the FBI office would create a security problem "imposing too much on the government."

MacBride appointed John E. Virga, a private attorney from Sacramento specializing in criminal law, to replace federal defender E. Richard Walker as co-counsel to Miss Fromme, who is acting as her own defense lawyer.

DelVal equalizes salaries for female, male coaches

SHOHOLA — The Delaware Valley School District has approved a contract with the Pike County Education Assn. that will equalize salaries of male and female coaches.

Part of an overall extra curricular contract, the agreement will give coaches of three female sports the same salary as male coaches in soccer, wrestling, basketball and baseball. All assistant coaches will receive half of the head coach's salary.

For coaches of the girls' sports it means salaries of $1,100 and $550, gymnastics head coach and assistant; $900 and $450, field hockey coach and assistant and $600 and $300, girls' softball coach and assistant.

Male coaches will be paid under the same salary schedule with wrestling and basketball coaches and assistants getting the top salaries of $1,100 and $550.

The school district's soccer coach will receive $900 and his two assistants will each receive $450. The head baseball coach will earn $600 and his assistant will receive $300.

The contract also provided the head cheerleading coach with a salary of $1,100 a year, while her assistant will earn $550.

"It's something we got a lot of good support on from both administrators and the community," said Mary Jane Seidenstricker, a negotiator for the teachers and head gymnastics coach.

"The girls usually received as much support as the guys during their games while male and female coaches in the district have always co-operated," she added.

Ron Robacker, head soccer coach and the district's athletic director, said he was "happy" the girl coaches were finally equal with the males and added "they should be."

"I wouldn't base the final decision on any one thing, but generally all the coaches in the district have about the same amount of expertise and work about the same amount of time," Robacker said.

Assistant Superintendent Joseph Fotos, who served as a negotiator for the board, also praised the final agreement.

"We don't have football or any big sport, so that could have helped with the equalization. In addition, we had girl's sports that were in existence for a long time and shown to be popular," he said.

Fotos explained that the board felt there were certain factors that were equal in both male and female sports: the number of participants involved, skills required to play, equipment necessary, coaches responsibility and fan interest.

"If you admit that all these things are the same, the only thing left is the amount of time devoted to a sport. And the length of the seasons for male and female sports is the same, so what's left," Fotos said.

In the case of Delaware Valley, it isn't a difference in sex.

It was no immediate hit

Religion 150 years old in Milford

By BRUCE POSTEN
Pocono Record Reporter

MILFORD — Religion came to Milford 150 years ago. It didn't receive a warm welcome, though, and early religious leaders like Bartholomew Weed, Jacob Quick and Moses Bross were often the targets of ridicule or a rock.

When Bross founded the First Presbyterian Sunday School in 1823, he only attracted 50 people to a meeting at the old county courthouse — a building that has since been converted into the county jail.

Ironies live on

A lot of things have changed in the last century and a half, but the ironies of history live on. And this week religion is the cause of celebration in Milford as congregation and community members honor the 150th anniversary of the First Presbyterian Church of Milford.

The anniversary celebration, which began last weekend with a flute and harp recital, will continue today and Sunday with a banquet, two special worship services, a guest speaker, historical skits, surrey rides throughout the town and an ecumenical procession down the borough's main street.

Planned for over a year and a half by a church committee, the celebration has been cited by the county's bicentennial director, Herbert Moore, as one of the main reasons the county was selected as a "bi-centennial community" last month.

Rev. Bruce Harde, part-time pastor at the church, attributes much of the program's success to the development of "lay leadership", noting that the church can't qualify for a full-time pastor because of its small congregation.

200 members

There are about 200 members in the Milford church and the district's Presbytery requires at least 250 members for a full-time minister, according to Rev. Harde, a "Tri-state resident", who resides in Sussex, N.J., serves as a town planner in Warwick, N.Y. and preaches in Milford.

Harde has been a minister at the church for the past six years; the 30th pastor who has headed the First Presbyterian Church during its 150 year history. He is assisted by Rev. W. Alfred Wycoff, a retired pastor from the United Church of Christ, Dingmans Ferry.

Rev. Harde sees the development of "competent and capable lay leaders" as the most important achievement of recent years.

"With declining numbers, a great deal more of the burden of leadership has been placed on lay leaders," he said.

He explained that in 1963 plans were made to merge the church board of sessions, whose primary concern was morals, with the church's board of trustees who handled financial affairs.

A new board of sessions comprised of elected elders was developed. Each elder is responsible for a specific church function like music, worship, finances or maintenance.

As far as the church's history is concerned, Rev. Harde immediately deferred to Shirley Foster, a housewife, 15-year member of the congregation and now "official church historian."

It all happened a year ago, according to Mrs. Foster, when she showed an interest in a pile of old records and books in one of the church's rooms. All that was needed was someone to transform the records into a concise historical booklet for the anniversary celebration.

As superintendent of the church Sunday school, Mrs. Foster said she "always had an interest in writing and putting things together."

Pouring over records written in long-hand and de-coding hard to read passages, Mrs. Foster ultimately got her chance to write 44-pages worth of church history and also gained over a year's research experience.

"I volunteered for it and the work was hard at times, but I enjoyed it," she said.

"It wasn't as if I were an author and all I had to do was write, so I took my time with it," she added.

Chiropractic degree awarded

DAVENPORT, Iowa — Dr. Timothy J. Carr of Pocono Pines has received his degree of Doctor of Chiropractic during the October commencement exercises of Palmer College of Chiropractic, Davenport, Iowa.

Carr is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Carr of Oak Road, Lake Naomi, Pocono Pines.

Carr has completed the required four academic years professional training to qualify for his degree. Palmer College is the first and world's largest chiropractic college.

Carr is also a graduate of C.W. Post College.

Mrs. Foster discovered a lot about the church through her research including how hard it is to recreate the past when there aren't accurate records.

Although the minutes of most church meetings were very detailed, she noted that the Presbyterian Sunday School didn't keep records at all.

What the records do show, however, is the founding of the First Presbyterian Church of Milford by Moses Bross in 1825.

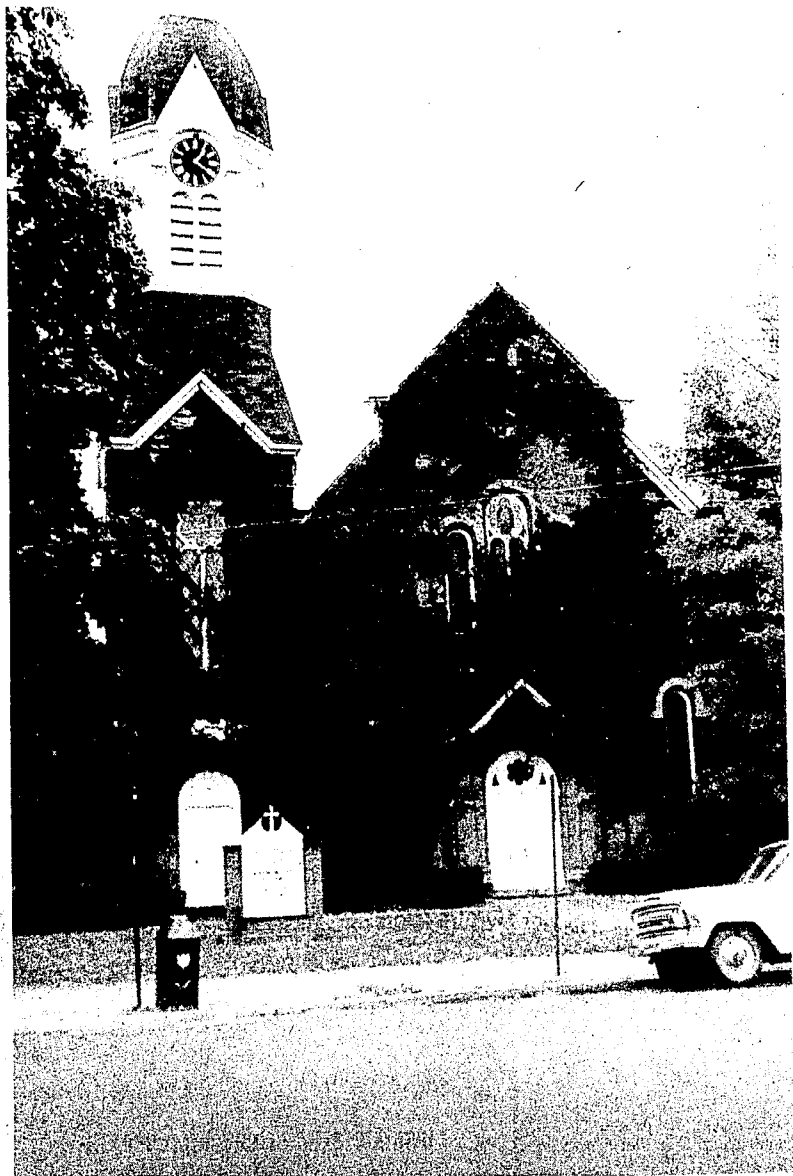

"Before the church, praying men, as they called them, were either stoned or mobbed," Mrs. Foster said.

But even that situation changed in 1832 when a moral crusade was launched by Milford's religious founding fathers.

Sinners who indulged in "unchristian conduct" were denounced from the pulpit and suspended from the church if they did not confess their misdeeds. The crusade was effective, Mrs. Foster said, and most of the town's leading men joined the church by the end of the year.

Mrs. Foster also reported that the cornerstone for the present church was laid in 1874, after over $5,000 was pledged for the project.

Mrs. Foster also uncovered facts about the church's architecture, building programs and activities of the numerous Women's Associations affiliated with the church.

PRESBYTERIAN PAST—The First Presbyterian Church of Milford celebrates its 150th Anniversary this weekend. The church, built in 1874, is located on Broad St. in the borough.

Your opinion on...

Gun control

In light of the two assassination attempts on our President's life, do you feel that there should be controls on the manufacture and sale of hand guns?

Herbert Hobson, Pocono Lake, township secretary. "Positively. It's criminal that guns are so available. I'm very much in favor of rigid controls. The easy availability of guns bothers me, it's a joke. It's criminal that guns can be bought like a five pound bag of sugar."

Mrs. Bernice Gardsy, Canadensis, businesswoman. "I can't help but think we're at the other end of the spectrum. Guns are too easy to come by. There should be control. But I don't feel there is any control that would be foolproof. Something has to be done to make conditions better than they are now. I also feel the media doesn't help in this case. It just sets off others so inclined."

James Davenport, Blakeslee, school administrator. "I'm absolutely against it. I personally feel it is a violation of our constitutional rights to bear arms. It would do no good anyway. As the saying goes, only the outlaws would have guns. I'm also against registration of guns. I feel the way to go would be by legislature invoking capital punishment. Anyone caught committing a crime possessing fire arms should be severely punished."

Joseph Walters, Pocono Farms, retired businessman. "I'm definitely in favor of controls. In fact I believe it should be prohibited entirely. I see no practical legal use for them."

Mrs. Jean Krynick, Mount Pocono, housewife. "Absolutely in more ways than one. I have another thought because of hunting, but that is another area. There are too many irresponsible people who are not just out to kill a president, but to get their names in the papers."

Charles Davis, Mount Pocono, retired businessman. "By all means. When guns can be bought so cheap, then life becomes cheap. Gun purchase is made simple for the criminals. With the condition of the country today, and people slightly demented, they go after a public figure to object to what their conditions may be. Unfortunately the public then bears the brunt."

DelVal adds $1,500 to school site study

SHOHOLA — Delaware Valley's School Board approved a $1,500 increase to the district's land committee Thursday after a board member admitted an error in projecting costs for two property studies.

Walter Shannon, a board member, said the $500 originally appropriated by the board to cover a study of two land sites would not be sufficient.

After meeting with members of the land committee, Shannon reported that about $2,000 would be needed to make a thorough evaluation of two sites in Delaware and Dingman townships.

The district hopes to select one of the sites for a new elementary school in the future. A committee, comprised of bankers, an architect and engineer, were appointed to evaluate the properties.

Shannon said a report on the sites would be "submitted in stages" with each committee member offering "an opinion in his area of expertise."

An engineering, soils and financial study are expected as part of the committee's report.

"It could run over $1,500 for all this," Shannon said, "but we do know that the original projection of $500 was too low."

Board members unanimously voted to give the land committee another $1,500, but asked that "a specific accounting be given when the report is submitted."

In other business, the board authorized the superintendent to file applications for federal funds under ESEA Title I, IV B and IV C funds would go toward library books for the Delaware Township schools and the hiring of a learning disabilities teacher.

Assistant Superintendent Joseph Fotos said all the grants are competitive. The district has verbal assurance on getting Title I money and a fixed sum of $1,537.16 for the IV B program if need can be shown, administrators said.

Title IV C for the learning disabilities instructor is not written yet.

Republican regulars far to right of general electorate

By ALAN L. OTTEN
Dow Jones-Ottaway News Service
WASHINGTON — A few weeks ago, a dozen "liberal" and "moderate" Republican senators visited President Ford and urged him to get off the conservative kick they thought he was on.

They argued that he had the GOP nomination locked up and didn't have to worry about conservative defections at the convention. But, they warned, his current conservative stance is creating a hard-to-change image that will cost him needed independent and Democratic votes in the final election.

Both propositions may be correct, but not necessarily. The senators are right in emphasizing that an aspiring candidate must worry about two constituencies — one that nominates and one that elects — and that these are often philosophically quite different. But they are not always so different that a campaign aimed at the former inevitably estranges the latter. The general electorate unquestionably is less conservative than the Republican nominating constituency. Yet quite conceivably many Democrats and independents will be in a passionately anti-spending mood next fall, and a strongly conservative Ford line may suit a majority of 1976 voters very well. Admittedly, though, this is debatable. What is not debatable is that the Republican nominating constituency is highly conservative, and that despite Ford's advantages as an incumbent, the Ronald Reagan appeal is sure to be substantial. All one needs to do is note the near-hysteria in the conservative establishment each time Ford buys a liberal-appearing proposal (such as the $100 billion energy development plan) or gives Vice President Rockefeller even the slightest pat on the back. "Human Events," for instance, plugs Reagan hard in every issue, and the American Conservative Union's latest "Battleline" newsletter front-pages a picture of Rocky in a Mouseketer hat, a headline that "Rockefeller pushes big government despite what he says in the South," and a lead that declares: "Chris Jorgensen went to Denmark and became Christine Jorgensen; Nelson Rockefeller went South and became Adam Smith."

Politics & People

Just how did the Republican establishment become quite so conservative? It used to be, back in the 1940s and early 1950s, that the more liberal eastern wing dominated the party. Most GOP governors and senators from big battleground states are still in the party's moderate-to-liberal wing: senators like Javits of New York, Percy of Illinois, Taft of Ohio, Scott of Pennsylvania; governors like Milliken of Michigan and Rhodes of Ohio. Thus it would seem logical to expect these same men and their supporters to have a strong voice in the national party. Yet, actually, in the past 15 or 20 years, they've had progressively less weight.

The reasons for this liberal loss of strength are many. As participation in the two parties steadily declines, it's the more moderate, independent-leaning men and women who drop out. Jobs, contracts, and other concrete rewards for party activity are largely gone, and ideology becomes the dominant motivation. The more conservative elements thus bulk ever larger in Republican ranks, just as the more liberal elements bulk larger in Democratic ranks, and it's these true believers who are particularly active in battles for convention delegates and other key party posts. The make-up of Congress and the state legislatures also limits the influence of the more liberal Republicans. The GOP governors and senators who must run statewide in big states with large numbers of Democrats and independents frequently feel obliged to tack left, or at least not go too far right. But in the House of Representatives and in state legislatures, most Republicans — at least those who remain around for several terms and thus build party seniority and power — tend to come from safe districts. And safe Republican districts tend to be very conservative districts, just as safe Democratic districts tend to be very liberal. Frequently, liberal GOP office-holders make alliances with liberal Democrats to win their legislative goals, and this tends to make them even more suspect in conservative eyes. Many liberals tend to be offensively arrogant and condescending towards the (obviously less intelligent) party conservatives.

It takes no great effort for President Ford to follow an essentially conservative course. No matter what Human Events or Battleline may say, he is by philosophy and habit clearly in the more conservative branch of the Republican Party; he couldn't have climbed the leadership ladder in the House if he hadn't been.

But personal philosophy aside, he also has practical political pressures holding him to the right — certainly for now, and perhaps for much longer.

Cooperation vital virtue

Periodically, municipal consolidation raises its head as a political issue, and the governments of Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg shudder in apprehension. Stroud Township remains silent and Delaware Water Gap speculates. Consolidation is just making official the sort of inter-municipal cooperation that's becoming increasingly necessary as the area faces the problems of growing population and development. And that sort of cooperation has become hard to find since the Monroe County General Authority began talking about a regional sewerage plan.

Cooperation, as any nursery school teacher will tell her charges, means some people giving something up in order to help the whole group achieve a given objective. In this case, Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg are being asked to give up autonomous control over their own sewerage facilities in order to provide a regional system that would benefit those municipalities who do not now have sewerage.

Everyone must pay, of course, but the two boroughs feel they would have to pay more. They're right: Sewerage service charges for borough residents would be higher under the regional plan than they are now. But the mischief is that if the boroughs back out of the plan, chances are good that federal funding will be lost, and that would mean such a high cost to the remaining sewerage-less municipalities that it is highly probable they couldn't have a sewerage system at all.

It isn't an easy decision to make, but perhaps consideration of the alternative — difficulty in developing outlying areas in other communities — might put a different perspective on things. Certainly individuals should look out for their own welfare, but there are times when a prime consideration should be the welfare of an entire region, not just historical subdivisions thereof.

A good fire drill

When we were in elementary school (too many years ago to think about, unfortunately), we were subjected to periodic fire drills. They consisted mainly of a teacher's warning that one was coming, a period of waiting nonchalantly for the bell to ring and then, once the alarm sounded, a leisurely stroll through the corridors, down the stairs and out into the playground. Polk Township firemen pulled a switch Wednesday, and we cheer their imagination and initiative. The alarm was not announced beforehand, except to a few students whose task, was to hide in closets and such to test whether or not teachers did indeed keep an eye on their charges.

As Polk Fire Chief Edward Arnold noted, the point wasn't to embarrass anyone, but to impress on everyone the seriousness of a fire situation and demonstrate to them how well or badly the reaction to a real fire would be.

It seems to have worked very well, and we encourage other fire departments in the area to pull similar surprise drills in area schools. We don't look forward to the day when the fire might break out in an area school, but we'd feel more relaxed about it if repeated, bonafide drills demonstrated that everyone knew what to do, and could do it well.

Global redistribution chic latest liberal 'in' thing

Jeffrey Hart

Yet another chasm is opening up between regnant opinion-makers and the vast majority of citizens. It involves the global redistribution of wealth. You might not have realized it unless you attend to the journals in which the members of the regnant opinion elite talk with one another, but global redistribution is now a very "in" thing.

It has been coming for some time, of course, but until now fashionable sensibility has been otherwise occupied — with the War, with Amnesty, with Watergate, and so on.

But back in 1969, for example, the (Lester B. Pearson) Commission on International Development, in a report to World Bank members, concluded grandly that "the simplest answer to the question (of redistribution) is the moral one: that it is only right for those who have to share with those who have not."

In 1971, chic British economist Barbara Ward was instructing us that it is time to extend the welfare state to "the whole family of man." In his widely read "Inquiry into the Human Prospect," Robert Heilbroner hoped for "a massive redistribution of wealth from the richer to the poorer nations."

But now this kind of thing has become commonplace among liberal establishmentarians. Pundit Zbigniew Brzezinski writes in Foreign Affairs that global "equality is becoming the most powerful imperative of our time." Sociologist Gunnar Myrdal and World Bank President Robert McNamara are beating the same drum.

In the Saturday Review, Harlan Cleveland, a liberal establishmentarian and former NATO ambassador, calls for "global redistributive justice" and for "important changes in the lifestyle" of Americans. Economist Kenneth Boulding explains that "people in Maine should feel the same degree of responsibility toward the people of Japan or Chile or Indochina as they feel toward California." And, of course, the theme has surfaced in international forums from the Third World Conference in Lima to the halls of the UN, where we are being asked simply to transfer billions of GNP (Gross National Product) directly to needy nations.

As all this gathers momentum, a few points moral and practical ought to be made.

It is doubtful that those people in Maine would feel much responsibility toward California if 1) California were a political tyranny utterly without civil liberties, 2) it had deliberately installed an inefficient economic system, 3) it was top-heavy with corrupt bureaucracy, 4) its population growth was out of control and it refused to do anything about it, and 5) it took every opportunity to oppose the interests of Maine and habitually directed insults toward that state. Yet all five of these conditions prevail in the case of most of the indigent Third World nations.

Moreover, it is both amusing and offensive to hear comfortable establishmentarians like Harlan Cleveland recommend "important changes in the lifestyle" of Americans. Suppose we did give 8 billion tons of grain to the UN Food Conference and in consequence the price of a loaf of bread went up to $1.50. For millions of Americans that would mean more than a change in "lifestyle" and the politicians would soon hear about it.

Blithe disregard

As in the case of so many liberal attitudes, the new global egalitarianism blithely disregards the world as it actually exists and as history has made it. The majority of Americans are not hard-hearted, but they assume that a nation is entitled to what its members have created. They have been generous with aid, but they certainly do not believe they have the solemn duty to bring about global equality. The "United States" and for that matter "France" and "England" are real things, and in contrast with that reality "the family of man" is a kind of pious fiction.

From time to time, various threats are hinted at, but it is not likely that the poorer nations have the power to bring about serious redistribution. If they had the power they would, like the OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) nations, have used it and we would not be hearing so much talk.

The fashionable redistributionism of the liberal elite, finally, is recognizable as a familiar play: the use of a supposed victim to berate and browbeat the West. These people would rather choke than advocate the expansion of Western power or territorial control or material well-being.

Global redistribution is our old friend, liberal self-hate, decked out in new guise. The majority will reject it, as they should.

Letters to the editor

Editor, The Record:

Many of our taxpayers simply cannot comprehend a vital principle regarding Act 319 (Clean and Green Bill). The principle is this: The immediate result of Act 319 will mean a slight increase in taxes to the small property owner, but in the long run it will enable landowners to retain land in its present use and prevent higher taxes to small property owners due to land development.

Why will land development increase taxes so much for the small property owner? It is because government services (schools, etc.) are closely related to buildings, business, and commerce — in short, people rather than land.

The delaying tactics being waged against Act 319 by our county commissioners is just another example of the weak leadership we have at the county level. The commissioners have been advised by the state Attorney General's office that this county is not exempt from this law. Therefore why are they using delaying tactics to avoid implementing this law? The commissioners have had ample time to get the figures before the public. It is my opinion that they will use delaying tactics until after the election. I think they are scared to death to make a decision. Either way, those running for office will tend to lose votes.

I expect the county will be open to many law suits from property owners who qualify for open space assessment. I expect to be one of those persons if relief from high taxes on open space is not implemented and put into effect for 1976. Commissioners — lets stop playing politics and show some degree of leadership in the implementation of Act 319 now — not after election.

Wrong approach

Editor, The Record:

I have read most of the articles on desegregation of schools and they never mention the cost to the taxpayer. We all know maintaining buses is expensive and when they travel twice as far to desegregate pupils it costs cities (taxpayers) double.

I am white and I feel blacks have as many rights as I have, but when a person has worked very hard most of his life to buy a home, what right has anyone to say who is to be his neighbor?

Why bus? Blacks living in their own neighborhoods should have schools comparable to those the whites have. Then there would be no need to desegregate. Or do the politicians mean integration?

Inflation politics

Editor, The Record:

Although I despise the extortionistic methods of organized labor and organized teachers or any other organized effort to extract from the public, by way of the government, an undue share of the products of industry, it looks as though the people who produce a little more than they consume and save the balance for old age or emergency needs will have to organize and bring pressure on the government to keep from being robbed of what they have saved, by way of currency inflation.

It is quite probable that, if we had not had a President who was willing to risk his political future and veto one act of Congress after another — acts to spend money in excess of what they ever intended to raise by taxation — we would now be experiencing another inflationary boom like those of this last 40 years which have reduced the value of our dollar to a fraction of what it was 40 years ago.

It is perilously possible that President Ford will be displaced, about 14 months from now, by a man who will not so ably guard the interests of the people on fixed incomes and the people whose wealth consists of dollars. If (God forbid) such a man should be elected with the consent of and by the financial assistance of George Meany and his collaborators, it is not hard to guess who will dictate the policies of the government.

Meany has made no effort to conceal his disapproval of President Ford's efforts to prevent inflation.

West End wanderings

It's cheap, healthy, entertaining

By MAUREEN RUFÉ
Pocono Record Reporter
BRODHEADSVILLE — This week I was privileged to go on a personally escorted tour through five miles of the most beautiful West End countryside I have ever seen.

Never before was I able to completely take in nature's comprehensive spectrum as I did while on that excursion — it was a turning point in my life, and I want to make the same experience available to you.

The tour is completely free and your guide is God. The only thing you'll need is about an hour, an open mind, some walking shoes and perceptive senses.

My personal tour took place one morning this week when I finally decided to do something I have contemplated and procrastinated about for months. I finally decided I would walk to the Brodheadsville post office to get my mail instead of hopping in my little VW bug and bouncing to the building and back in a 10-minute ride, which carried me round trip about four to five miles.

I started out with the idea of walking for the exercise but looked forward to a very dull trip, since the tour mainly consisted of walking the stretch of Rte. 209 between the Meadowbrook Diner and the Brodheadsville post office.

"What's there to see on Rte. 209?" I thought to myself. "I go by that every day and I don't see anything special."

But that was just the point I had missed in the three years I have lived at Frog Hollow. Because I depended on driving everywhere, I missed much of the beauty of the West End.

I had only gotten a few hundred yards from the house on my walk when the first black and brown fuzzy caterpillar meandered out from the grass on the side of the road and brazenly walked right across my path. I couldn't resist the temptation to pick it up and feel it. As soon as I lifted the bristly creature from the road, he or she, as the case may be, spit out a green blob of something at me. I took the hint and let the caterpillar down on the road to continue his journey, happy that he greeted me good morning.

Would you believe that I saw 10 more such colorful caterpillars on the trip that morning? It seemed as if they ran out of the grass to announce my coming as I approached their watch post. Such fascinating creatures. I wondered how many of them I had crushed with my car without ever knowing they were there.

Pulling out a sprig of overgrown grass and putting it between my teeth in what I assumed was authentic Huckleberry Finn style, I came upon an abandoned grist mill. Delicate leaves of green watercress dotted the mill run, that was now clearly dried up since the stream had been diverted. I ran my hand over a rough stone of the mill and it was icy cold — the mill must have been a bustling place in its day.

It only took a few minutes for me to reach Rte. 209 and it was not until I walked along that plain black paved highway that the trip really developed into something exciting.

I meandered through the Brodheadsville cemetery across the highway from the Zion United Lutheran Church and discovered tombstones from the 1800's.

Just then I heard a chattering racket in the middle of the one border of the cemetery. I approached cautiously and looked up into a huge towering tree. Hundreds of blackbirds were flocking together that morning and they were joining in a cackling song that I never would have heard behind the closed windows of my Volkswagen.

I found a stream behind the Catholic church I never knew existed. I stumbled over some huge black walnuts that had fallen from trees in front of Gelhen's red barn and I noted two huge millstones in Dr. Martucci's yard.

My hands got sticky when I opened some milkweed pods growing haphazardly in the field next to the A&P. As I was trying to get the juice off my hands, I looked down and there beneath my feet was a network of the most delicate wild strawberry vines. They were growing along Rte. 209, no less.

I encountered three dead birds, a dead cat and a dead possum on my journey, rested in an abandoned apple orchard and collected some hickory nuts at a rundown yellow farmhouse, tripped over a host of rusted tailpipes and stripping left over from automobile accidents and enjoyed a long stay at a brown bench tucked away under some young walnut trees in the Buena Vista Cemetery.

I learned that the place at the corner of Silver Valley Drive and Rte. 209 is known as Spruce Farm. I never saw the tiny sign naming the farm while riding by, but on my walk I was able to observe fine details like this on the porch.

In the yard of the farm property were some luscious newly fallen yellow pears that greeted me with a tempting hello. I wanted to pick one up, bite into it, and let the juice run down my chin, like I did when I was a kid, but I thought I'd better wait until my next visit.

As I headed back into the driveway of my home I rustled and ran through the leaves and was thrilled with the crunchy sound.

What a delightful hour I was privileged to spend on tour with God that morning just walking to the post office. Do you want the same experience? It won't cost you a penny, just decide to leave your car home and take a walk instead.

Up Milford way

Autumn irony

By NORMAN B. LEHDE
Comments that fall with the leaves.

"Someone said at a meeting the other evening that the Department of Environmental Resources, through their current regulations, are now zoning Pike County. If this is true, don't you think it is greatly resented by local officials?"

"Not completely. I suspect it is always easier to join in cussing something the state is doing than it is to explain to a neighbor why you have passed a regulation restricting his activity for his own good."

"Do I understand this correctly, the county may not be able to build because they can't get a sewage disposal permit because Milford doesn't have a sewage disposal plan because the plan the county had drawn up isn't acceptable to the DER as far as the borough is concerned. Did you ever hear of anything like this?"

"Yes, in Catch 22."

"Wouldn't it be ironic if, after exploring the possibilities of everything else, the Pike County General Authority ended up by establishing a landfill dump site in the county?"

"Yes, and from the way things have been going the day they opened it the government would probably announce a new funding program for the construction of incinerators."

"Do you agree that education has declined? What did they do with slow readers when you were in school?"

"They let them stay in the Sixth Grade until they were old enough to quit school."

"Didn't that create special difficulties?"

"Yes, for the Sixth Grade teacher."

"Why are there so many problems now?"

"One of the reasons is because we are concerned with

Facts you should consider

- It's safe
- It's Sure
- It's Convenient

- It's Easy

• It's Time Saving

1 Why is there so much interest today in the direct deposit of social security checks?

The Treasury Department has initiated a program to encourage the recipients of all recurring Federal payments to deposit these directly into a financial institution. Under this plan, an individual can have his check sent directly to his financial institution for deposit.

2 How will I benefit from direct deposit of my social security check?

It saves a special trip to the bank just to deposit your check. It eliminates worry about the check being lost or stolen in the mail. And, any time you are away from home or cannot come to the bank, your check is automatically deposited for you.

3 Can I have it deposited to my savings account as well as my checking account?

If you want a portion to go into the savings each month, ask your bank about an automatic transfer of a specified amount each month from checking into savings. By law your Social Security check must be directed to one specific account, either checking or savings.

4 How do I sign up for this service?

Simply complete the government form SF1199, available at any bank. Personnel at your commercial bank will be glad to help you complete the form.

5 How do I get the information needed to complete the forms?

All the Social Security information you will need is on your monthly check or in your initial award letter from Social Security. If you need any assistance or have any questions, your bank will be glad to assist you.

6 Do I send the form directly to social security?

No, you should complete the top half of the form only and take it or mail it to your bank. They will complete the form, sending one copy to you and one to Social Security.

First National Bank will guarantee your money will be in your account even if the actual check arrives late. All Direct Deposit Accounts are completely FREE, including checkbook and checks for the life of the account.

Meet The Pocono Record's News Team

It's your Constitutional right to know what's happening in the world . . . and it's our job to see that you're made aware in the clearest, most concise way. As long as the American democratic system is alive, we'll work to keep you informed. For only when there is a system of fearless, unbiased reporting are we truly a free people.

JOE DE VIVO

"Pocono Joe" is famous for his pigskin picks and lively, bright writing of the innermost workings of local teams. But around The Record, he's known as our "quiet man". It isn't shyness; he's thinking. And the process results in top stories on who's doing what in local sports. If there's a weakness to Joe D., it's the horses. If he did as well with his track picks as he does with the pigskin picks, he'd not have to work. Joe's a Stroudsburg lad, like Bruce, and knows many area sports luminaries from his own days on the local scene.

DEBORAH ENYEART

Also known as Deb or Debbie, she wryly notes, "The world is my beat". More fact than fancy, Debbie will write a series of articles on home-building riffs one day, and a feature story on a sculptor-gardener the next. What we call a general assignment reporter, Debbie is versatile, quick and accurate in her reporting — and a sure bet to get an answer from someone who might hang up on a male reporter. She's our problem gal: She helps solve them, if you have one and let her know about it.

GARY GROSSMAN

A calm man in a harring job, Gary is our City Editor, and as such has the responsibility for seeing to it that Record reporters cover the stories that must be covered. Assignment is his main function, but by no means the only one. He edits reporters' copy, lays them onto the pages that are his responsibility (where local stories are found), writes the headlines and chooses the pictures we'll run any given day. Admirably suited for the job by temperament and ability, Gary started with The Record as a courthouse reporter. A practicing iconoclast, he has the right attitude for an editor: Believe none of what you hear, but check it all out in case it's true.

FLIP DE LUCA

Real name Albert (don't tell anyone), Flip is our courthouse man. He reports on the doings of Monroe County's commissioners and the various row offices. He also follows up on the General Authority and welfare agencies, covers court when in session and generally keeps us abreast of what's happening politically in the area. In all, a personable young man whose roots go deep in the newspaper business — his dad was a publisher with the Ottaway chain, which owns The Record and 11 other publications.

JEFF WIDMER

Our resident intellectual and music buff. As such, he covers the education beat, reporting on the doings of school boards throughout Monroe County and East Stroudsburg State College. A former bandsman, he also likes hitting the various jazz dives and reviewing the performances of those who tickle his ear. Enthusiasm is his hallmark — that, and a facile way with the written language. Jeff, like DeLuca, has a natural tie-in to journalism: His dad, Bob Widmer, was business manager here at The Record and is now publisher of the Port Jervis Union-Gazette. Which still doesn't explain why he's growing a beard!

BOB GROFF

Our man up front. Page 1 is his prime responsibility as News Editor, and an important one, for we sell many newspapers from dealer shelves — and what you see is what you buy. Bob's duties include selecting those stories we will run (an average of 24) from among the hundred or so United Press International sends across its wires each day, and selecting the stories that will make Page 1. He is the charge man on nightside, where the action is. A common sense man with a healthy dose of skepticism, his occasional columns are guaranteed to life the lid off some political skulduggery or other.

TOMI CASTELLI

The newest member of The Record family, her gentle manner and soft, southern accent belie a firm commitment to quality and variety on The Record's Family Fare page. She edits that section, and seems to spend considerable time chatting with organization officers who have news to give and comments to make. She takes it all in stride and transforms it into the sort of news we think people want to read — chatty items, informative items and advice on how to cope in these troublous times.

STEVE DRACHLER

Known as "the Count", for purely word-play reasons, Steve covers the police beat, which gets him into more police stations than any criminal in the area. He also serves as The Record's watch-dog on Tocks and anything involving the Corps of Engineers. His persistence and diligence has given us many exclusive stories on the controversial project. An inveterate fire alarm chaser, he's been known to vault from bed at 3 a.m. to find out what's going on when the alarm sounds — and has many times gotten there before the firemen. Also a fine photographer, he backs up Brian Heller and serves once-a-week tricks on the city editor's desk. A versatile and valuable fellow, the Count.

BRUCE POSTEN

Our whimsical staffer whose rich auburn hair and beard rival those of Leif Ericson himself. Bruce spends more time on the road than most of our staff. He's responsible for coverage in Pike County, which mainly means two or three days a week in Milford, keeping tabs on the commissioners, the borough council and the Delaware Valley School District. A wry touch to his writing lends appeal to his feature stories, which invariably are easy to read but the very devil to write headlines for. Bruce is a Stroudsburg boy whose interests give him a wide range of assignments.

HARRIET LEEDS

Our government gal. Abreast of all that's going on in the twin boroughs and Delaware Water Gap, she is a persistent digger after facts and a cryptic writer of them. Harriet also has a bit of the crusader in her, a nose for inequity and a fierce desire to expose it. A good gal to have in your corner. Unless you have something to hide. But she also turns in a cheery feature and is rounding into a good photographer. Don't let her five feet, one-inch height fool you — she's all reporter.

JOE MIEGOC

Sports editor and sports devotee — a happy combination for us and for him. Joe's golf writing is well known in the area, as are his annual forays into the wilds of Augusta, Ga., to cover the Masters. A solid writer with well-founded opinions, Joe tootles around the county and beyond in his snappy sports car, digging up the stories and columns that bring area sports action to life for The Record's readers. Fairness and accuracy are his outstanding attributes, plus a willingness to work hard to assure complete sports coverage, no matter how minor the event.

RON BOUCHARD

Where the buck stops, as Harry Truman once said. Ron is the Editor of The Record, and as such has final responsibility for its news content. His is the job of overall planning and policy making — and answering telephone calls, many complaints, but often welcome compliments. Ron also prepares the editorial page and writes the editorials, usually in consultation with Publisher Alan Gould Jr. He is also the business manager for the editorial department, sorts through Letters to the Editor, makes occasional forays into the community to feel its pulse and generally stays busy enough to keep of trouble.

Travel increase

NEW YORK — Consumer travel aftermarkets are expected to expand from an estimated $48.7 billion in 1976 to $78 billion by 1983.

A Frost & Sullivan, Inc., survey indicates the number of nonlocal travel miles will climb to 500 billion in 1983 from 370 billion miles in 1972. An increase in the number of nonlocal miles is not anticipated through 1976, however. The greatest growth potential is projected in hotels-motels, eating places, trailer markets and retailing of sporting goods and camping equipment.

Another governor's castle to sit in empty splendor

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — The new California governor's mansion is nearing completion and will leave Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. with a $1.3 million solar-assisted suburban white elephant finished in teak and tinted glass.

Bachelor Brown refuses to live in it, and the legislature has rejected his requests to turn it into a seminar center for state employees.

Taxpayers can expect to pay about $105,000 a year for guards and maintenance while the 25-room villa sits empty.

"As hard as roofs are to come by these days, it seems a tragedy to let an elegant structure like that go into a state of abandonment," lamented Gregg Lipscomb, deputy General Services Department director overseeing the project.

But Brown administration officials note that it could be four times as costly if the governor should move in after the Oct. 20 official completion date.

The Spanish-style mansion dominates a pastoral bluff 20 freeway minutes from the busy Capitol on 11 oak-studded acres that extend downhill to a sand island in the clear American River.

Rafters and canoes float past, teen-agers bounce down the predominantly well-to-do Oak Street neighborhood on horseback and golfers look up from the 15th tee of an adjacent golf course.

The mansion contains 12,000 square feet, five times the size of a typical family tract home in California. It is built in three sections — service, family and official — in a U-shape around a hand-crafted tile courtyard with a fountain and trees.

The double doors are 16 feet of laminated redwood, open beams are of Douglas fir capped with custom copper decorations, cabinets are of teak. Water is heated by an experimental utility company solar unit.

Once a political campaign asset to the cost-conscious and ascetic Brown, the mansion now is becoming a potential liability as construction ends and it sits glaringly empty.

So Brown is letting it be

Plastic declines

NEW YORK — For the first time since the end of World War II, the production of plastic resin, the main ingredient in plastic products, is expected to decline in 1975, The Society of the Plastics Industry says.

Production of plastic resins increased to 28.3 billion pounds in 1974 from 27.2 billion pounds in 1973. But SPI expects production to be down this year because of the petrochemical shortage.

known, perhaps to avoid adverse opinion by a public beset with housing woes, that he may use the residence a little, after all.

Press Secretary Bill Stall said the governor, who up to now has done virtually no official entertaining, reserves the right to hold big dinners at the mansion and to "invite guests out."

Still, for his own Sacramento home, Brown is staying put in a rented $250-a-month downtown flat where he sleeps on a mattress and box springs on the floor. Low overhead and uncomplicated security make it about $400,000 a year cheaper than the mansion would cost if it were in constant use, administration officials say.

In his campaign last year, Brown found the mansion an appealing issue. It was the dream house of former governor Ronald Reagan, the result of a seven-year effort during his tenure, and built on land donated by Reagan supporters. Brown denounced it as wasteful and declared that such luxury living was superfluous to his "new spirit" politics.

An irony in the saga is that Reagan was merely continuing what was started by Brown's father, former two-term Gov. Edmund G. "Pat" Brown, who went so far as to conduct a national design competition for a mansion he could never get approved.

Since the younger Brown's election, there have been problems.

The new governor at first talked of possibly moving back into the state's 101-year-old original governor's mansion where he spent part of his childhood. But that proposal was abandoned as too costly and the structure continues to serve as a state museum.

At the same time, he was unable to stop the new mansion project as he had hoped. And the state Senate balked at his proposal to convert it into a cost-saving seminar center where rents pay operating costs and turn a small profit besides.

Brown says he is open to suggestions and another seminar bill is being contemplated for next year.

But there seems to be little enthusiasm among legislators. Some of them believe the mansion should be reserved only for governors and others simply enjoy Brown's predicament of being saddled with a house he has vowed not to live in.

Wellesley features Felshin

WELLESLEY, Mass. — Dr. Jan Felshin, professor of physical education at East Stroudsburg State College, was the opening speaker at International Women's Week at Wellesley College on Friday, Oct. 3, a week that featured an ambassador, a film maker and the Viveca Lindfors production of "I Am Woman" on the campus.

Dr. Felshin spoke on the topic, "Equal Rites for Women in Sport," and she also met with various campus groups while there.

Dr. Felshin says that, although women's colleges do not have the problems of fighting for facilities and budget with men, their programs in sport tend to be "low-key" because sports for men have the status and importance of masculinity rites while women's sport is simply not taken very seriously.

Women's colleges have, however, had sports programs since the nineteenth century and at Wellesley, where the annual crew competitions ended with classes competing in singing, Helen Shafer, the president of Wellesley College, said in 1893, "... crews are no longer selected because of their vocal talent, but because of their general physical fitness."

Dr. Felshin was recently named to receive a certificate for teaching excellence at East Stroudsburg. She had also been active in the writing of articles which have appeared in numerous professional journals and co-authored the book, The American Woman in Sport.

She joined the East Stroudsburg State College faculty in 1968 after serving as an associate professor and coordinator of teacher education at Ohio State University. She earlier taught at the University of Nevada and at the University of California.

Dr. Felshin received the Doctor of Education degree from the University of California at Los Angeles, the Master of Science degree from Wellesley College while a teaching fellow there, and the undergraduate degree from Sargent College of Boston University.

Hollywood logs one of its more generous nights

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Hollywood, despite its myriad high-powered press agents, rarely puts its best foot forward and more often than not the community's finest moments go unheralded.

This week show business sparked at a testimonial dinner honoring Danny Thomas at which, typically, his friends poured abuse on him to disguise their sentimentality.

Also typically, Hollywood was honoring Thomas' life work, the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Memphis, Tenn., by raising $385,000 for the hospital.

On the dais in an overflowing banquet hall of the Century Plaza hotel were Bob Hope, Frank Sinatra, Lucille Ball, Carol Burnett, Joey Bishop, Red Buttons and Jan Murray, among others. David Rose's 34-piece orchestra provided the music.

Hope, an irreverent master of ceremonies, began the evening by ribbing Thomas for his public religiosity and oft-repeated devotion to the Catholic church.

"We're all here to kiss Danny's ring," Hope began. "And on Sunday night, too. We're giving up Cher's navel for Danny's nose.

"What can you say about Danny that he hasn't already said about himself. The Jews made him an honorary Arab. And the Arabs made him an honorary Jew. He was born in Toledo in a manger and wears stained-glass contactlenses."

Hope introduced Rabbi Magnin, a long-time friend of Thomas, as "A kosher Billy Graham."

Jews and Protestants predominated at the banquet, contributing money and talent to the proceedings.

Indeed, in 1948 the original board of St. Jude's, except founder Thomas, consisted of Jews — Dr. Dan Leventhal, agent Abe Lastfogel, attorney Paul Ziffren, publicist Maury Foladare and Maurice Stoller.

Rabbi Magnin's invocation at the banquet drew applause.

Hope introduced Col. Harlan Sanders who contributed $60,000 to St. Jude's.

And then it was time for the funny men. Jan Murray read a parody from the Bible with Thomas as a comic savior.

Joey Bishop looked at Bob Hope and said, "Thank God you're here. I know we're not at war."

Carol Burnett read an emotional letter from Marlo Thomas, Danny's daughter, who was making a movie in New York.

Red Buttons regaled the crowd of more than a thousand, observing, "Danny Thomas is a legend in his own mind."

Hope introduced the music people. "The greatest entertainer of our time, Frank Sinatra. But Frank isn't talking to me because in his war with Australia I didn't entertain the wounded."

First Sinatra and then Liza Minnelli tore the house apart with their songs.

When the music faded away Hope read a telegram to Thomas from President Ford:

Phyllis McGuire, of the singing McGuire Sisters, presented Danny with a check for $100,000 from herself and another friend of the hospital.

Then, to a standing ovation, Thomas, who identified himself as a hooked-nosed, Lebanese comedian, said, "I take no bows. I am only grateful to God there are more children living than dying now."

He cited hard facts on how leukemia was no longer considered an incurable disease, thanks in large part to the work at St. Jude's since its founding 13 years ago.

In that time Thomas has traveled the length and breadth of the country raising more than $9 million yearly to build and maintain the facility for children.

Thomas spoke emotionally of the battle against cancer taking place at St. Jude's and the progress being made. He spoke, too, of his early vow to St. Jude, the patron saint of hopeless causes, to build a shrine in his name.

"There are no such words as 'fatal' or 'despair' at our hospital," he concluded. "And St. Jude's is a child of show business. It couldn't have been done without the generosity of show folk. God bless you all."

It was a fine hour indeed for the stars, producers, directors, agents and all the rest of Hollywood which does more than take care of its own. It also reaches out to aid helpless children — and doesn't ask the price.

Lester Coleman, M.D.

Chronic ulcerative colitis

My oldest sister is 56. As long as I can remember she has had colitis with ulcers. Is there no cure for this condition?

Mrs. T.H., Ind.

Dear Mrs. H.:

I assume that the condition you describe is the one known as "chronic ulcerative colitis." This has no relationship to the familiar ulcer found in the stomach.

This type of colitis is a complex disorder of the large intestine. Its duration is long and patients run through periods of being better, and then reverting to activation of the disease.

For a long time, it was assumed that there was a dominant psychological basis for this disease. Certainly, it is not the only cause because it is a distinct bacterial infection of the lining of the large intestine.

Because it is persistent and chronic, the combination of disease and psychological distress leaves the patient physically and emotionally devastated.

The diagnosis is made by X-ray studies of the bowel, with special techniques that show the rigidity of the intestine due to long-standing disease.

Now, with antibiotics, sulfa drugs and cortisone, combined with special diets, chronic inflammation can very often be prevented.

In special cases, surgery is performed. In addition to all these forms of treatment, it has been found that psychological support can be very effective in returning patients with chronic ulcerative colitis to almost normal productivity.

We have tried every way, from kindness to harshness, to break our 8-year-old of stuttering. Nothing works.

Mrs. T.H., Mich.

Dear Mrs. H.:

The idea of parents trying to "break a habit" implies a certain amount of pressure which is in itself contrary to good judgment in helping a stut-

ter. Embarrassment, punishment, shame, nagging are not the answer to this problem.

The added pressure, in fact, only reinforces the problem and makes the solution more difficult.

It is impossible for parents, without professional guidance, to understand the cause, the mechanism and the cure for stuttering. The science of speech therapy has made great strides in the understanding of this problem.

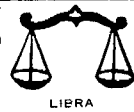

First, it is imperative to have good psychological studies done, with the hope of pinpointing the cause. Then, with new electronic equipment and biofeedback techniques, it is possible to restore the stutterer to normal speech. Many hospitals and universities all over the country have departments where all phases of communication are studied. Under their guidance, your child will benefit enormously.

Your Horoscope

Frances Drake

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — Tread watchfully — to avoid needless errors and rubbing others the wrong way. Tact and understanding will do most to keep matters going smoothly.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — You should have little opposition now unless you look for it — which you can do witlessly. Sow the seeds of good will and keep your counsel discreetly.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — It may occur to you to try to imitate others to get results. But think first. Your own methods could prove more advantageous in the long run.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — Inspired ideas may be followed by your outstanding creative accomplishments. Good organizing will help to leave time for social activities.

LEO (July 24 to August 23) — Do not allow a desire for pleasure and comfort cause you to neglect duties important to your future. Be tactful in making requests, not demanding.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — Favored now: cultural and community interests, social functions. However, be discreet in all things; don't go to extremes and don't let too much frivolity cause fatigue.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — Some plans may have to be changed whether you like it or not. Be patient and composed, for you may well profit by the change. Keep your sense of humor sharp.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 23) — As with Libra, you may face some unexpected changes now, and the day will certainly have some tantalizing moments. But take all in stride, emphasize serenity.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — Do not become frustrated over delays, disappointments or persons who get in your way. Meet obstacles with composure: you can overcome them all.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — Mixed influences. In some areas you will have to be extremely conservative — notably in budgetary matters. In others, you can act with gusto. It's up to YOU to judge.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — Orient yourself to beneficial changing conditions. Take a long, hard, objective look and come to a realistic appraisal. From this you can pattern future activities with accuracy.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — Even though you have remarkable intuition, don't count on it alone. Back it up with facts and proper understanding of all situations.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a fine intellect, creative ability, an outstanding intuition, fairmindedness and unusual sympathy for the underprivileged. You can be gregarious, too, but tend to be unyielding at times, thus alienating potential friends and aides. You are reserved and dignified, but always ready to lend a helping hand. You may have a fine singing voice and, if so, should spare no effort to develop it. Fields in which you could achieve a notable success: music, writing, the theater, the law, statesmanship, medicine and education. Birthdate of: Samuel Clarke, Eng. philosopher; Eleanor Roosevelt, U.N. representative, wife of U.S. President.

STROUDSBURG — Denying charges of harassment leveled against him by several disgruntled Stroudsburg property owners, Joint Codes Enforcement Officer Stanley Melvin said, "I'm not harassing them. They're harassing me."

The property owners complained at a borough council meeting last week, which Melvin did not attend. An aluminum contractor, a landlord and a Main Street business owner all described recent confrontations with zoning codes enforcement officers.

Melvin rebutted the complaints in detail Tuesday, showing documents from his files to back up statements he made.

First the codes officer showed how he had "bent over backwards" for landlord Allen McAllister.

McAllister is remodeling apartments at 515 Main Street, (K. Kamera), and has been doing so since 1971 thanks to extensions granted by Melvin.

Pending since 1971 McAllister first got a permit to do the remodeling from Mitchell Strunk, who preceded Melvin as codes officer, June 16, 1971.

That permit expired after a year, but still the work was not completed. Due to the commercial zoning of the area, the apartments were a non-conforming use.

After being unused for 18 months, the non-conforming use elapsed. Melvin said he appeared in McAllister's behalf before the Stroudsburg Zoning Hearing Board for a variance to maintain the non-conforming use.

In a decision dated June 10, 1974, the Zoning Hearing Board granted McAllister a variance to continue the work and told him to get new permits to replace the expired ones.

"We gave him new permits dated July 29, 1974 and good for one year," Melvin said, looking through the file, "at the end of one year, once again I allowed him to renew the permits. I re-issued the permits, which I didn't have to do."

Melvin said McAllister, a retired building contractor, complained to him about his financial troubles and bad heart.

"I let him renew the permits and at the last inspection I told him I'm not going to grant him any more extensions, this has dragged on long enough," Melvin said.

The codes officer explained he could also have forced McAllister to conform to the original plans he submitted in 1971, rather than allowing changes.

"The harassment charge is completely misfounded," Melvin said. "I claim we are being harassed by him making false statements to the public."

Embarrassing situation

Both Melvin and his assistant, Walter Doyle, were involved in inspecting work done at Lawrence Studio, 526 Main Street.

Mrs. Rosemary Levy complained in a letter to council of harassment by Doyle. She said Doyle interrupted her husband in front of customers to discuss building violations.

"What kind of government are we adopting when a man like Mr. Doyle can go in and embarrass a businessman in front of his customers like that?" Mrs. Levy said in her letter.

Doyle had a different version of what happened.

He said he was standing in the store waiting for Levy to finish with his customers when Levy asked, "Can I help you?" Doyle introduced himself as a codes officer, he said, and the two men became involved in a discussion about the building.

Levy could have asked Doyle to wait until after he had taken care of the customers present, Doyle said, but he didn't.

Another complaint in Mrs. Levy's letter was that Doyle "threatened to arrest" some masons doing work on the store.

Doyle and Melvin asserted this charge was "ridiculous." "We have no authority to lock anyone up," Melvin said. "Our authority is to issue a citation."

In addition, Melvin said, "There is never a citation issued from this office unless that is the last step that we can do."

Intelligent enforcement

"My job is to intelligently enforce the ordinances," Melvin asserted. "I have to give a little. Old buildings can't be expected to meet the same requirements as on a new building. Each thing is handled on its merits. No two structures are alike. I have to use common judgment to bring buildings up to minimum requirements of the codes."

Melvin next discussed the case of Joseph DeRenzis, the aluminum contractor who appeared twice before council and once before District Magistrate Graden Praetorius who found him guilty of working without a permit.

The codes officer explained DeRenzis was cited because he was found guilty of the same offense twice in two days. He described the difficulty he had in getting DeRenzis to accept the citation.

Refused citation

DeRenzis refused the citation from the codes office and when the district magistrate sent the citation, he also turned it down.

He finally accepted the citation when delivered by men from the county sheriff's department.

Although DeRenzis was found guilty by the Magistrate, he still has no permit, according to Melvin Tuesday.

"He has 15 days from the hearing to appeal to the Court of Common Pleas," Melvin said.

The contractor's secretary said she knew of no intent to pursue the case further. DeRenzis could not be reached.

In addition to explaining the circumstances of the complainants, Melvin commented that anyone convicted of a violation of the zoning and building ordinances has the right to appeal.

"I am only the first step of enforcement," Melvin said. "Those aggrieved can file an appeal with the appeals board and go on to the Court of Common Pleas if they're not satisfied."

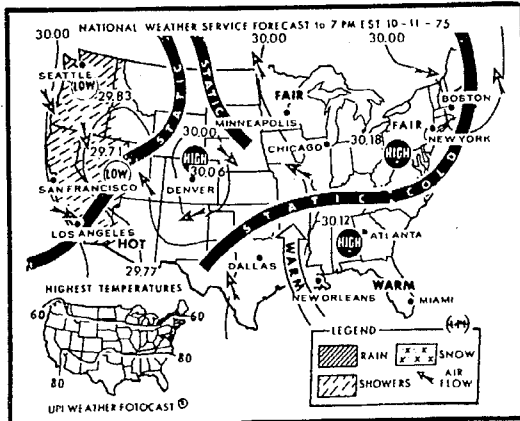

We would like to express our sincere thanks to all of our friends and neighbors for the kindness and sympathy expressed during our bereavement in the loss of husband and father...

— ROBERT E. PUGH —

We also would like to thank the ambulance's and the Monroe Co. General Hospital and Staff for his stay in August, Also Dr. Pond and Staff, The High School adm. and Staff and Crew and the co-workers at Bangor Products.

Jackson checks road ownership

REEDERS — The Jackson Township supervisors are unclear about who owns the Old State Road that was used heavily for thru traffic in the municipality before Rte. 715 was built.

And therefore, the officials said they could not guarantee that the municipality could officially vacate the road so that it can be deeded back to the original property owners.

The issue came up Thursday night at the regular supervisors' meeting when local resident Robert Danker asked the township to deed back part of the abandoned thoroughfare to him.

The supervisors said they were not sure if the road belongs to them or the state. The board instructed Solicitor Ronald Mishkin to look into the situation along with the township engineer.

In other business the supervisors said they would consider pointing an additional two members to the township recreation commission next month. This would bring the total number of board members to seven.

The supervisors are considering providing health insurance for township employees and will set up a special meeting with two agents this month to discuss quotations.

The board also discussed purchasing a tape recorder for the township, but the motion to purchase it died for lack of a second.

The supervisors agreed to look into complaints that Pocono Mountain School buses are not traveling down two separate stretches of road in the township reportedly, because the roads are not in good enough condition.

Goodwill collects at ESSC

EAST STROUDSBURG — A Goodwill collection box has been established at East Stroudsburg State College in the residence hall area of the campus.

According to a spokesman from Goodwill, "No single group in the United States today is more conscious of human welfare needs and more involved in social concerns than the college campus. Both students and faculty are concerned. It was with this thought in mind that a Goodwill collection box has been placed."

This Goodwill box, however, is different from others. It has been painted in the college's colors. A pennant on top of the box carries the college seal and the words "East Stroudsburg State College."

The clothing articles which are collected from the Goodwill box are sold in Goodwill stores, and the proceeds are used to hire handicapped persons.

Open fire house

SAYLORSBURG — The Blue Ridge Fire Company will provide free firetruck rides for children from 2 to 4 p.m. today and will sponsor an open house for adults.

DELAWARE WATER GAP
— Sometimes the obvious answer is not so obvious.
Take the Tocks Island Dam for example.
Since July, when three of the four Delaware River Basin states voted not to support damming the Delaware, both proponents and opponents have been searching for alternatives.
Friday night, during a conference of anti-dam groups in Delaware Water Gap, several experts outlined alternatives to the $385 million dam and lake.
Several alternatives listed, according to the speakers, would require no more dams, little more money and are much simpler than a giant multi-purpose reservoir.
One program, outlined by Peter Skinner, an engineer serving as environmental assistant to New York State Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz, would involve using three already in-use reservoirs to meet the water resource needs Tocks Island was planned to fill.
Skinner's plan calls for changing the three New York City owned reservoirs in the upper Delaware basin to multi-purpose projects. They now provide only water for New York City.

The reservoirs, Cannonsville, Pepacton and Neversink, could be converted easily and with no danger to the New York City water supply, Skinner said.
"There would be some swimming and non-motorboating," he explained. "To me it adds up to a viable alternative to damming the Delaware."
The three reservoirs, which now are required to supply a small portion of the water needed to maintain a certain flow level near Milford, could also supply much more water to keep the river at acceptable levels, according to Skinner.

There is a catch, Skinner noted. New York City has thus far not shown much inclination to change their water release policy and is not enthusiastic about opening up the reservoirs for recreation.
"I don't pretend it is an easy solution," Skinner said. "We hope to bring out a change of plan with Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware working together."
Skinner said the New York

State attorney general is considering legal action against the city to require changes in water releases.
Charles Komonoff, a New York City economist, offered his alternative for providing electrical power once proposed by the Kittatinny pumped storage facility near the dam site north of Shawnee-on-Delaware.
"My solution is simple in concept, it is too bad it was not considered in the study done for Congress," Komonoff said.
He proposes that instead of the 1300 kilowatt pumped storage facility, a combination of a gas turbine generating plant and combined cycle plants.

The result, Komonoff claims, would be power generating facilities which are more efficient and more flexible than the pumped-storage plants.
Komonoff also urged development of solar energy sources to help alleviate the strain on other power sources.
Attorney Lawrence Sager of Pottstown said that building the Tocks Island Dam would only be a symptomatic solution to the water supply, power, flood control and recreational needs of the river basin.

"The end line on all this is a political decision," Sager said. "Tocks, while initially for flood control eventually became a system for additional water supply for out of the basin exportation."
Sager said it was cheaper for New York City and Northern New Jersey to buy water from Tocks than to spend money for their own reservoir system.
"It's incredible," Sager said, adding that constant political pressure is needed to prevent the dam from being pushed through and eventually built.
One other way to conserve water, thus making it available for downstream use, according to Skinner, and agreed upon by the other two speakers, is water metering in New York City.

Metering New York City's water would, Skinner contends, cut down drastically on the amount of water shipped to the city from its three upstate reservoirs. That water could be put to good use elsewhere.
The "Billion Dollar Beaver Conference," sponsored by the Delaware Valley Conservation Assn., and funded through a federal grant, runs through Sunday.

Write to know

Q. I bought an air conditioner on the installment plan from W.T. Grant's Co. in East Stroudsburg in May of 1974. Under the terms of the contract I was to pay 34 monthly installments. I paid the entire balance in 14 payments, with the last payment in July of 1975. Because I've paid ahead of the schedule I feel I'm entitled to a substantial rebate on the finance charges. Grant's agrees, but I can't seem to get my money. Can you help me?

S.J.M., East Stroudsburg

A. The problem lies with Grant's central credit bureau in Woodbury, N.J. After two lengthy phone calls we were able to get your claim in the hands of an adjuster. This adjuster is working on your account now and you should receive a letter informing you when to expect your rebate within a week.

Q. I sent $8.49 for six bulbs from the Lakeland Nurseries in Hanover in June. I've received my canceled check, but not the merchandise. I've written to them, but never received an answer. Can you find out what happened?

E.H., Henryville

A. Your timing was apparently bad. Your order reached the nursery in late June and the company stops all spring sales in the early part of the month. During the summer months they don't ship these plants because they've found the heat damages them. You are on their back order list, but the type of bulbs you ordered aren't scheduled to be shipped again until spring. You can either wait until then and get the bulbs, or get a refund for your money now. Write to the Lakeland Nurseries Sales, Hanover, Pa. 17331 and tell them which choice you prefer.

Q. I am trying to find a book on the history of the Delaware and Hudson Canal entitled "Coal boats to the Tidewater" by Wakefield. I would like to buy or borrow this book. Do you know where I can obtain a copy?

H.M., North Haledon, N.J.

A. Sorry, but we weren't able to get lucky in our attempt to track down this book. The Monroe County Public Library doesn't have a copy of the book and a local book dealer couldn't find it listed in any catalogue. Apparently the book is out of print. If a reader has a copy and is willing to either sell it or lend it to you, we'll let you know.

Aside to R.B.R., Pocono Pines: The questions you pose in your letter are the things you should ask the photo company when you write your letter. You definitely should not just let the matter drop. Find out what you are entitled to receive. If you have difficulties with the company, write us again and we'll try to help you. Until you attempt to contact the firm there's no reason for us to call for you.

Q. I have two remote controls from an old automatic garage door. I now have new controls on my garage and don't want the other two controls to go to waste. Is it possible to change the frequency to match the new controls?

F.W.H., East Stroudsburg

A. It's possible, but unlikely. Ordinarily it's difficult to change especially if you've switched from one make of door control to another. You can contact Automatic Door and Gutter Co. in East Stroudsburg and someone will check out the possibility for you. The phone number is 421-3036.

Q. I sent an order to Warshawsky & Co. of Chicago in August for six cans of car refresher and a windshield washer pump. The package arrived with the wrong merchandise, so I sent it all back along with a letter. Another package arrived with the car refresher but not the pump. I wrote another letter to ask about the pump, but still haven't heard anything. Can you help me?

M.D., Pocono Summit

A. Warshawsky's customer service department will issue a replacement order for the pump you never received. Expect to receive it within three weeks.

Jury convicts pair of gambling

STROUDSBURG — A Monroe County Court jury deliberated about 30 minutes Friday before returning guilty verdicts against two Stroudsburg residents charged with gambling and maintaining gambling devices.

John Thurmond and his sister Brenda Thurman were convicted on the charges following three-and-a-half hours of testimony in a trial which began Thursday.

Meningitis infection tracked

EAST STROUDSBURG — A Pocono Mountain student was in guarded condition Friday in the General Hospital of Monroe County after contracting spinal meningitis.

A hospital spokesman refused to release the name of the 14-year-old girl and said her condition was guarded but improving.

He said her physician, Dr. Moiz Mohyuddin, indicated it was a serious disease but didn't pose a serious threat to the community.

She was admitted to the hospital Thursday with what was diagnosed as a meningococcal infection of the blood.

The infection progresses from a nasal droplet of infection into the blood through the body and can involve the spine and brain, as it has in this case, the spokesman said.

The disease is contagious only through direct physical contact, such as drinking from the same cup or using the same towel.

The spokesman added that other students in her classes or who rode her school bus would not be in danger unless there had been physical contact.

He said all people who have had physical contact with her are believed to have been identified and are receiving antibiotics.

The infection was described as having an incubation period of two to seven days with a rapid onset of symptoms.

Dr. Mohyuddin said some of the symptoms are a cold with a fever, runny nose, cough, sore throat or severe infection with a high fever, a rash, headaches or loss of appetite, all of which may occur in hours.

The spokesman said the case has been reported to the state health department.

The pair was continued free pending possible appeals and presentence investigations.

Testimony from two undercover state policemen, Thomas Taylor and John Anderson, related that Thurmond invited the two men to the Palace Bar, Main Street, Stroudsburg to gamble. Thurmond is manager of the bar.

The troopers said they visited the bar on May 6 and purchased chances on a punch board. Taylor also purchased a new punch board from Thurmond for $15, he testified.

The undercover men testified that it was Miss Thurman who was tending bar on May 6 and sold them the chances on the punch board.

On May 27, the trooper returned to the bar and were invited to join in a poker game with a $50 table stake.

Miss Thurman testified that she remembers seeing the troopers but denied selling them chances on the punch board and said she knew nothing about the poker game.

In other court matters, testimony is to resume Monday in the trial of John Bowman of Swiftwater and Robert Gray of Cresco who are charged with robbing Muldoon's Sunoco Service Station in Scotrun of $47 on July 6.

Harold Hardenstine of Stroudsburg R.D. 3, attendant on duty at the station that night, testified that two men entered the station after 3 a.m. Both had dark plastic bags over their heads and one pointed a shotgun at him.

Hardenstine said he complied with their demand for money but as they turned to leave, he wrestled the gun from one of the robbers. During the struggle, the plastic bag fell off the robber's head, Hardenstine said.

Tpr. Nelson Bidwell and Tpr. Alfred Arkovitch testified they saw a maroon Camaro parked on a side road near the station and saw two heads duck down when their lights hit the car.

Bidwell said they took the two persons from the car and searched them. Bowman handed him a roll of money, Bidwell testified, which contained $47.

Bidwell said they took Gray and Bowman back to the service station where Hardenstine identified them as the robbers.

Gray took the stand in his own defense Friday and said he drank a lot of beer and tequila the afternoon before the alleged robbery. "I was pretty intoxicated. I had trouble with my memory," Gray said he even had trouble with his memory the next day.

Dawn Peechalka of Henryville testified that she was with Bowman and Gray that night and they were drinking beer and tequila. She said they brought her home about midnight.

Police blotter

Two-car accident

BLAKESLEE — Three people escaped injury in a $1,000 two-car accident at 11 a.m. Friday on Interstate 80 three miles east of here.

State police at Swiftwater said Richard Enlow, 71, and Honor Enlow, 70, of Chillicothe, Ohio, were traveling east on the interstate when they attempted to pass a car driven by John Scheri, 52, of North Bergen, N.J.

The right side of the Enlow car struck the left side of the Scheri vehicle, causing $500 damage to each car, police said.

Driver cited

STROUDSBURG — A Stroudsburg man was issued a citation for reckless driving after he hit a sign and sign marker at Main and Fifth Streets Thursday night.

Stroudsburg police issued a citation to Robert A. Miller, 19, of 23 S. Eighth St., after the 9:50 p.m. accident.

Miller told police the accident occurred when he tried to avoid hitting another car. Police said his car received $700 damages while the sign received $50 damages.

Warrant served

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg police served a warrant for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle and assault on Ibraimov Thursday.

Ibraimov was committed to the Monroe County Jail in lieu of $2,500 bail after the warrant was served at 9 p.m. at 49 N. Tenth St. Further details were not available from police.

Drug charges

EAST STROUDSBURG — Three people were bound over to court on separate drug charges after preliminary hearings Friday before District Magistrate Graden Praetorius.

Edward F. Lachase, of Stroudsburg R.D. 5, was committed to the Monroe County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bail on two charges of possession of marijuana, possession with intent to deliver and delivery.

Criminal conspiracy charges against him were dismissed. Dale Keiper, of Stroudsburg R.D. 2, was released on bail after facing charges of possession of marijuana, possession with intent to deliver, delivery and criminal conspiracy.

Frank D. Rosario, of East Stroudsburg R.D. 5, was committed to the Monroe County Jail in lieu of $10,000 bail on four charges of possession of marijuana, possession with intent to deliver and delivery.

A charge of carrying firearms without a license was dismissed.

Republicans seek support in Monroe County races

STROUDSBURG — Area Republicans were urged to "back the team" at the annual fall rally of the Monroe Council of Republican Women Friday night.

Over 40 people gathered in the Penn-Stroud Hilton to hear candidates running for county commissioner and other offices.

Commissioner candidate Mrs. Nancy Shukatis, who is running for her third term, said the courthouse has become the center of county activity in the eight years she has been in office.

She said residents are more aware of county activities and can judge how candidates will perform in office by the way they answer questions.

Jesse Pierson, the other candidate for commissioner, told the audience that county government has become big business with a budget over $4 million.

He said commissioners were business managers who would have to provide "responsible, improved fiscal directions" next year.

Unopposed candidate for auditor, Mary Emma Garcia asked people to look at her record from 36 years in office and at her qualifications and thanked them for their support.

Claude Heller, the other candidate for county auditor, urged the audience to work to elect a Republican slate of officers.

"There's a need for Republicans to get behind the whole team and support the Republican candidates," he said, adding it was important to vote for all candidates including those who were unopposed.

James F. Marsh, district attorney running for election in ness with a budget over $4 million.

He said commissioners were business managers who would have to provide "responsible, improved fiscal directions" next year.

Unopposed candidate for auditor, Mary Emma Garcia asked people to look at her record from 36 years in office and at her qualifications and thanked them for their support.

Claude Heller, the other candidate for county auditor, urged the audience to work to elect a Republican slate of officers.

"There's a need for Republicans to get behind the whole team and support the Republican candidates," he said, adding it was important to vote for all candidates including those who were unopposed.

James F. Marsh, district attorney running for election in both parties, said the local court calendar is not behind in cases and said he could "guarantee a speedy trial."

Marsh also told the audience the present criminal court session was unique because the "back-to-back" mistrials in addition to the mistrial in a murder case of a county man that was transferred to Bloomsburg.

Sheriff Forrest Sebring, who is running for re-election, and Michael Albano, candidate for prothonotary, were unable to attend the rally.

Republican county chairman Ed Katz thanked Republicans who had volunteered their services to help candidates, which he said was a sign people considered them to be good candidates.

"It's flattering the way volunteers flock to the campaign," Katz said, adding there were no paid workers.

"For someone who thinks he has no use of that arm to hear that sound telling him there's still something there, it gives him hope," Taylor said.

Biofeedback can also help doctors discover things that may be troubling a patient without his realizing it.

During a conversation the needle may jump, indicating a thought troubled the patient.

"If he can't remember, we try to get him to be more aware of what he's thinking about so he'll know the next time it happens. The machine doesn't lie," Van Meter said.

Unbeaten Cavaliers approach Cardinals with caution

By JOE MIEGOC
Record Sports Editor

EAST STROUDSBURG — Dick Merring has his mind on one thing in particular. Joe Ortelli has a lot of things on his mind.

Merring, whose Cavaliers have won four straight and host Pocono Mountain tonight, remembers about a year ago when his team lost to the Cardinals. He doesn't want it to happen again.

"It's a kind of revenge game," Merring contended, "because they beat a good East Stroudsburg club last year and we're real concerned about the same thing happening again this year."

"They're an improving team and getting better each week," he continued. "They have a sound defense, which we're going to have to beat in order to win. Their offense is getting better and they now have a good fullback in Bill Helbig."

"They're a good team, well-coached on fundamentals and it should be a good game."

On the other hand, Ortelli has some things to worry about. The Cardinals have had trouble getting going this year, "motoring," as Ortelli calls it. This time they have a lot to handle.

Ortelli concerned

"We've got to stop Dave Beck and we've got to control their passing game," Ortelli said. "Just when you think you have Beck stopped, their fullback (Glen Steimling) breaks loose."

"It will take a tremendous job by our defense to keep them down," he added. "I think the important thing again this week is that we just have to put points on the board. We've scored two touchdowns by offense in four ballgames and that's just crazy."

The Cardinals have stopped themselves more often than not.

"Against Leighton we were down knocking early in the game when we could have done a lot to wrap it up early and we fumbled the ball away," Ortelli said. "Then we fumbled again at their 20."

"Things like that, you just can't have them happen and put points on the board. If we're not fumbling the ball away we're getting a penalty."

Had nice drives

The Cardinals did have some nice drives against Leighton, but they lost the ball and eventually, on a late touchdown pass, the game.

"They had some nice drives against a lot of people," Merring said. "They have good ball control. They would have had it against Leighton but they fumbled. They are the type of team that better not fumble because it obviously loses the ground control."

"So what we have to stop is the long ground game thing."

Kevin Kuchinski is out of the game with a separated shoulder and brother Bill will step in at quarterback. "Billy and Kevin were fighting it out from the beginning of the year," Ortelli explained. "It was a head-to-head contest. Billy has a pretty good arm on him and he can throw the ball very well."

Cavalier defense tough

But East Stroudsburg has allowed just 19 points in four games. "They aren't easy to score on, so we'll have our work cut out for us," Ortelli stated. "East Stroudsburg has one of the better football teams around. They're well-coached, they're well-disciplined, they do the right things at the right times."

"If you fumble in their territory they're going to snap it up and score on you," he added. "They are opportunists."

The Cavaliers hope to dictate what the Cardinal offense can do and Ortelli expects it. "Coach Merring makes you play an even ballgame," he said. "It's the type of thing we also try to accomplish. We don't want anybody stuffing us up on the line and we want you to respect our passing game. We're going to have trouble stopping both things at one time."

Key to game

Merring feels the key to the game is getting in front early.

"What we have to do to win is score big," he remarked. "I think we have to score on the big play and get points on the board early. It's the type of team that if it gets ahead it's tough to get the ball back from."

Pocono Joe's pro picks

By JOE DeVIVO
Record Sports Writer

Last week: 12-1 .923
Overall: 31-8 .795

Those unpredictable Philadelphia Eagles prevented a perfect 13-for-13 outing last week. How do you figure Philadelphia? One week they can't beat Chicago and the next they look like world-beaters against Washington.

The Eagles' game could be a hint of what's to happen in the weeks to come: Lots of upsets. The law of averages says the favorites are going to start falling soon and my percentage could drop right along with them. We'll be a bit cautious with this week's picks.

SAN FRANCISCO OVER ATLANTA — A lucky bounce saved the Falcons against New Orleans. Steve Bartkowski hasn't been able to get Atlanta's offense rolling so chalk up another victory for Norm Snead and Co.

BUFFALO OVER BALTIMORE — Bert Jones, with the help of an improved offensive line, has turned the Colts into a fairly respectable team. But Buffalo's still too much for the Colts.

DETROIT OVER CHICAGO — The Lions couldn't christen their new stadium with a victory against the Cowboys, but they should be able to down the Bears.

DALLAS OVER N.Y. GIANTS — The Giants still make too many mistakes on defense and Dallas is the type of team which can capitalize on them.

PITTSBURGH OVER DENVER — The Steelers are hot on the heels of Cincinnati and can't afford to take a fall against the Broncos.

NEW ORLEANS OVER GREEN BAY — There's not much to pick from in this match-up, but the Saints sometimes can get hot playing at home. If it happens this week, they could pick up their first victory.

HOUSTON OVER CLEVELAND — The Browns haven't played very well so far this season. There's no reason to expect them to drastically improve today.

OAKLAND OVER KANSAS CITY — The Raiders were held to a pair of George Blanda field goals last week so they'll probably take out their frustration against the defensively-weak Chiefs.

LOS ANGELES OVER SAN DIEGO — The Chargers turned in a good defensive effort against Oakland, but still couldn't win. Although the Rams haven't played up to their full potential, they still have more than enough manpower to handle San Diego.

CINCINNATI OVER NEW ENGLAND — The Bengals had a tough time against Houston, but Ken Anderson was able to rally his team to its third straight victory. Jim Plunkett is probably a couple of weeks away from his true form yet, so Cincy gets the nod for its fourth in a row.

MINNESOTA OVER N.Y. JETS — Joe Namath was particularly hot last week, but he could cool off when he goes up against the Vikings.

MIAMI OVER PHILADELPHIA — Even though the Eagles pulled off a big upset last week, they'll be hard pressed to beat the Dolphins in the Orange Bowl. We don't think they can do it.

Monday night

WASHINGTON OVER ST. LOUIS — The Redskins will probably be in a foul mood after dropping last week's game to the Eagles. The Cards are ripe for a defeat after a couple of close calls.

Royals hope to regain winning touch tonight

ROSETO — Pius X of Roseto hasn't had a losing season in football since 1962. Lenny Litzl doesn't think the Royals are going to turn into losers now.

Although Pius X has lost three straight games and still must face such tough opponents as Whitehall and St. Pius of Pottstown, Litzl firmly believes the breaks are going to start falling in the Royals' direction.

"I don't think we're going to have a losing season," Litzl said. "We've lost three games and the combined records of those teams is 10-1-1. We were in each ballgame. We feel if we take away four plays we could be 5-0."

"We had a safety called back against Slatington because a player didn't get off the field in time. In the Notre Dame game a punt return that set up their first score cost us the ballgame," he said. "Against Marian Catholic, a 35-yard touchdown pass with 1:23 left beat us. You take away those four plays and we're undefeated."

Pius X has had its problems on offense, but Litzl feels the overall play hasn't been that bad.

"We don't feel we're a bad team and we don't feel we're playing real terrible football,"

Litzl said. "The odds have to catch up with you. You're going to lose some of the close ones and win some of the close ones. We just haven't won any of them yet."

The Royals would like nothing better than to reverse their losing trend tonight against Phillipsburg Catholic. The Terriers have always been the arch-rival of the Royals and this will be the final meeting between the two schools because of Phillipsburg Catholic's commitments to its Delaware River Conference schedule.

"After losing three in a row we need no other incentive to win," Litzl said. "We're really hungry for a victory."

Phillipsburg Catholic has not gotten off to a good start this season with a pair of losses. But Litzl feels the Terriers' 0-2 record is deceptive.

"They lost to North Hunterdon and Hunterdon Central, who are the class of the DRC," Litzl said. "They've been playing schools much bigger than they are."

Ball control team

Phillipsburg Catholic, coached by Ray Mantoni, has traditionally been a ball control team and Litzl says things haven't changed this season.

"They like to keep it on the ground," he said. "If they can keep it on the ground and sustain drives they're going to keep you on defense for a long time. We can't let that happen. If you let Phillipsburg Catholic control the ball on the ground, you're going to get beat. It's as simple as that."

The Terriers' two key backs are Jim Schreffler and Dana Rounsaville. Mike Nehill is the quarterback who has the job of replacing last year's offensive star Tom Hank.

The Terriers also have a large tackle in 6-3, 250-pound Johnston Oberly, but the Royals have no reports on him because he didn't play in the game they scouted.

Injury-wise for Pius, defensive tackle Sal Cerami is definitely out with a broken foot.

Taylor registers Mt. Manor ace

MARSHALLS CREEK — Mrs. Marge Taylor of Portland, using an eight-iron, scored a hole-in-one Thursday on the 90-yard second hole of the yellow course at Mountain Manor.

Mrs. Taylor, a club member, was playing in a threesome with her husband Earl, and Raymond Scott, also of Portland.

than in the past.

"This is a very important game to us," Owens said. "Things are different. We have a lot of experience this year. We have a better team than in the past."

The Mountaineers can't afford to be overconfident, however. They came into the 1969 Penn State game under similar circumstances with a 4-0 record only to go home saddled with a 20-0 defeat.

Record could fall

Owens comes into today's game with a good shot at breaking the all-time West Virginia rushing record. He needs 126 yards to break the mark of 2,181 yards set by Bob Gresham from 1968-70.

Temple's Doug Brown gives edge to WVU

By JOE MIEGOC
Record Sports Editor

UNIVERSITY PARK — Pen Argyl's Woody Petchel doesn't come right out and say it in too many words, but a loss to West Virginia today could end Penn State's bowl hopes.

The Nittany Lions have already lost to Ohio State and a second loss, presuming they will win the remainder of their games, would leave them with a 9-2 record.

"If we get beaten by West Virginia," Petchel said, "we probably won't go to a bowl game. But that's the furthest thing from our minds. It's not hard to push that from your mind when you have a game as big as this one to concentrate on."

West Virginia, especially since the Mountaineers are 4-0 and a victory over Penn State could boost them considerably in the national ratings, has talked about today's game as the big one. The "Bowl Game."

"Oh yeah, I could see how they would think that way," Petchel conceded. "But we don't like to look that far ahead. It's always a rivalry game and a big one for us, but every game is a big one."

Offense vs. offense

Penn State coach Joe Pater-

no expects a game of one offense facing the other.

"I think it may come down to who has the ball last," he says. "We'll have to score points if we expect to beat them. I can't see anybody keeping West Virginia under three touchdowns."

Topping the list of West Virginia's backs who will have to be stopped is Stroudsburg's Arthur Owens, a back whom Paterno described last season as being "better than Anthony Davis of Southern California."

"This is as good a West Virginia team as I've ever seen," Paterno said. "To put it simply, it should be a great football game with two great college football teams."

Home advantage?

A year ago, Penn State beat West Virginia down in Morgantown, 21-12. That was at the Mountaineers' home, but Petchel doesn't put much stock in the talk of advantages at home.

"Last year we won down at West Virginia," he remarked. "They had the home advantage but it didn't bother us."

"At home you get more excited," he continued. "There's a home court advantage, so to speak. More people are our fans and hearing them cheer for you gets you excited."

"We realize they're pretty good," Petchel said. "They have everything going for them. We have to do what we know how to do and that's play a good game."

Petchel, a senior tailback, is listed on depth charts behind junior Rich Mauti, but the Nittany Lions run two tailbacks, so he'll see plenty of action.

No personal rivalry

One thing Petchel, who started under his father Elwood Sr. at Pen Argyl and followed his father's footsteps here in 1972, doesn't think too much of his talk of a continuing personal rivalry between Owens and himself.

"I don't think about it at all," he commented, sounding as if he were sick of hearing about it. "I played with Brian Baschnagle and against Archie Griffin (in the Big 33 game) before and playing with Brian now and against Archie again never entered my mind."

"There's no rivalry in college like there was in high school," he explained. "Not for me, anyway. What we have to do is have a good game and that includes me."

Petchel could play an important role in the manner Penn State has to play to win the game.

Warriors tab three captains

EAST STROUDSBURG — Center Pat Flaherty and line-backers Steve Smith and Jeff Johnson will serve as game captains for the East Stroudsburg State College football team for today's Steel Bowl against Cheyney State at 2 p.m. in Coatesville.

Flaherty will head the ESSC offense while Johnson is defensive captain and Smith in charge of the special teams.

Coach Penny Douds' team will be bidding for its fifth straight victory without a defeat. Cheyney is now 2-2.

doesn't know if Penn State will try the same type of strategy today.

"I can't really say. It's hard to tell until you go out and start playing," Owens said. "Joe Paterno is a smart coach. Penn State is a tough team, but you can't say they're the toughest. They're all tough."

One thing Bowden has used to get the maximum effectiveness out of his running game is a rotating backfield.

Alternating's okay

Owens alternates with Dwayne Woods and although he didn't like the maneuver at first, he's changed his mind now.

"When we first did it, it kind of bothered me," Owens said.

"Now I see it's for the best. Dwayne and I are different kinds of runners. He stops and makes his big move. I run and make mine. It makes it a lot harder for the defenses when we switch."

Owens also feels he's proved he isn't strictly an outside runner.

"A lot of teams were kind of taking me lightly," he said. "Not lightly really, but they were always looking for me to go outside. I showed them I can go inside too."

Whether it's inside or outside, Penn State better beware. If they don't the only place they'll be looking at Owens is from behind as he outdistances the defenders into the endzone.

means 70 per cent of the plays are outside the tackles.

"They dive once in a while," he explained. "Elliott Walker had our touchdowns against us last year and he's only a sophomore now. Whew!"

Homecoming game

It's Homecoming at Temple and Brown said the Owls, 1-3 after three losses to open against Penn State, West Virginia and Boston College and a win last week over Cincinnati, are ready.

"It should be an excellent game," Brown predicted. "It's Homecoming here and everybody's up. We want to win real bad."

"We have to play as well as we did against Penn State (in a 26-25 late game loss). If we make mistakes, they'll kill us."

Things have changed

Temple opened the season high on the feeling it was on its way to the top of Eastern football. Three straight losses to open the year can change that quickly.

"If we were 3-1 or 4-0," Brown said, "Well... I guess it would mean going to the top with a win over Pitt. Then maybe I'd be rooting for Penn State. It would even things out a bit."

"But now we're just trying to climb up," he explained. "We're trying to make a name for ourselves. Respectability's the name of the game down here now. We're not as bad as our record. We just want to show everyone that we're a good team, that we're not as bad as our record."

A lot of Dorsetts

Getting back to Pitt, coach Bobby Majors has developed a team which can be said to be filled with Tony Dorsetts. That's what Brown and Temple think.

"They have a lot of Tony Dorsetts," Brown remarked. "All of them, even their ends and quarterback, are speedsters. They're real slick. They used to run out of the 'I' but now they run the Veer, which

Ann Landers

Changed son

Dear Ann Landers: We have a 17-year-old son whose entire personality changed about three years ago. He has been on drugs, totaled two cars, won't attend regular school, refused to work, comes in whenever he feels like it (drunk or stoned), has little contact with the other members of the family, doesn't care for girls (says he can't find the "right one"), has seen a psychiatrist three times, went to a mental health clinic, refuses to go back, says they are all crazy there.

The chief psychiatrist informed us they "couldn't handle the problem" but he never did tell us what the problem was. The conversation ended when the doctor said, "It is impossible to help someone who doesn't want to be helped."

We keep hoping our son will mature but he doesn't seem to be making any progress. He wears the oldest, dirtiest clothes he can find, goes barefoot most of the time, and walks on the heels of his Levis.

We are a middle-class, church-going family, have given him plenty of love and done our best. Now I ask you, is this a normal child? Is there anything on the face of the earth that can be done for him that we haven't thought of? — child be considered normal. He is hostile, self-destructive, unmotivated and emotionally disturbed. If you have not had him evaluated by a neurologist I recommend it. The problem may be something more than behavioral.

Please don't sit around waiting for him to "grow up." It won't happen. Keep working with professionals and pray the boy will find a release from the prison of his warped mind.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm dating a young man who is 26, good-looking, well-dressed, drives an expensive car and always has plenty of money to spend. Funny thing is he doesn't have a steady job, just works a few Saturdays in a men's shop when he feels like it.

I hate to be nosy because he's a neat date, but I am worried about his cash flow, which seems endless. I can't figure out where it comes from. —

Money Talks

Dear Concerned: Money sure does talk but it doesn't tell where it comes from I suggest you ask this bird some direct questions. If the answers don't add up, give Mr. Gotrocks a Methodist Handshake and send him on his way.

Dear Ann Landers: I was engaged to Clem for six months. I broke off with him because he wouldn't stop drinking. Two months ago he promised to give up the bottle forever if I'd give him one last chance. I agreed.

Well, he hasn't stopped drinking. All that has changed is that he shows up smelling of mouthwash, mints — anything to try to fool me. Last night I told Clem to leave me alone for good and consider himself "unengaged — permanently." He said, "O.K. Give me back the ring."

I feel I should keep the ring because I earned it. It's a pretty diamond, worth about $500. There must be laws about such things. Advise me, please.

Unburdened

Dear Un: In many states there are laws — and they say the woman gets to keep the ring if the man breaks the engagement. In your case, YOU broke the engagement, so hand back the sparkler, Toots.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 16, a girl, and have been told I'm very pretty I've been dating for a couple of years and am considered fun.

Last night I had a blind date with a guy who was really neat. I was quite shook when he told me I kissed like an amateur. When I asked him what he meant he said, "It's like swimming with your overcoat on."

What DID he mean, Ann? How can I improve my kissing?

Miss W.W.

Dear Miss W.W.: Sorry, kissing instructions are out of my line. But I do give advice. And my advice to you is to cool it, kiddo. When you meet someone you really care about (and you can't make that decision on the first date) you won't need any lessons.

Discover how to be date bait without falling hook, line and sinker. Ann Landers' booklet, "Dating Do's and Don'ts," will help you be more poised and sure of yourself on dates. Send 50 cents in coin along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill., 60120.

She exists

FRIEND'S FRIEND: (Q.) I met a really nice guy at my friend Cathy's house, but he doesn't even know I exist.

Cathy and he are very good friends. They are not going steady but they really like each other a lot. I think Cathy is really crazy over him. I know I am.

People say I have a good personality and am attractive. How can I let him know I like him. —

Excited in Maine

(A.) His actions show that he knows Cathy exists, and is interested in her existence. In that case, about all you can do and still be fair to Cathy is to act and look your best in the hope that he will start noticing you as well as Cathy and maybe start gravitating your way.

But do not hope pointlessly. Do not spend a lot of time day-dreaming about someone who may not ever care for you. If nothing happens soon, turn elsewhere — resolutely.

LAST TIME: (Q.) I went with Jay some last summer. Since then he's been calling and coming over often. Last time he came we had sex. It was the first time for me. I did it to show him how much I love him. But since that night he hasn't called or come over anymore. I'm 14, he's 17. What should I do? —

In Love in Indiana

(A.) You should remember, when you are with future boy friends and a similar opportunity comes up, that giving a boy everything he thinks he wants is often a very good way to lose him.

It is also a good way to get into trouble. I hope your only trouble is having to find a new boy friend.

Opening lead — king of spades.

It is of course impossible to achieve the impossible, but there are many seemingly hopeless contracts that can be fulfilled by means not readily apparent.

For example, take this deal where it would appear that South must go down one after a spade lead and a heart shift. However, the picture is not nearly as black as it seems.

West's leap to four spades is obviously based on lots of spades, and there is consequently very good reason to think that East may well be taxed with the entire burden of guarding both the hearts and the clubs.

So South's best plan of play to avoid what appears to be a certain heart loser is to exert a form of pressure on East that he cannot withstand.

After winning the heart shift with the king, declarer draws two rounds of trumps, ruffs a spade in dummy, and plays two more rounds of trumps to produce this position:

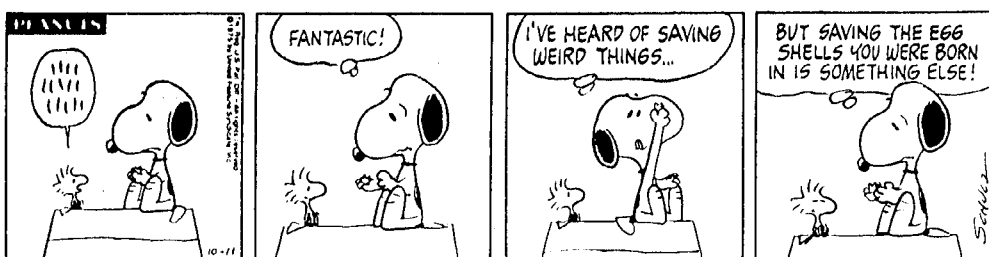

North
♥ A 6
♣ K 8 7 4

South
♥ 9 5 4
♦ 10
♣ A Q

When South leads his last trump, discarding a heart from dummy, East finds himself in a pickle. Whatever he discards, declarer makes the rest of the tricks.

If East sheds a club, South cashes his A-Q of clubs and plays a heart to dummy to score the K-8 of clubs. If East throws a heart instead, South plays a heart to the ace, returns to his hand with a club and scores the 9-5 of hearts.

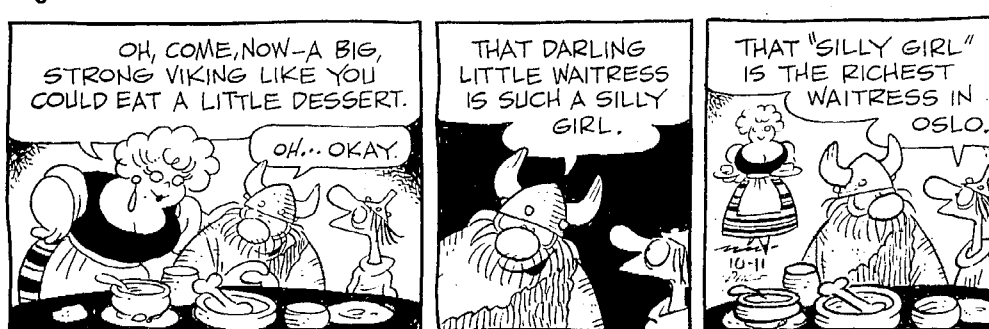

There is no escape for East.

"Same Time, Next Year" playwright Bernard Slade's slice of the $1,000,000 movie sale is $600,000; the contract also gives him 60 per cent of the movie's gross over $10,000,000 (of the other 40 per cent, the producer gets half, backers the other 20 per cent) ... Composer Mundell Lowe and Betty Previn were wed last week; it happened in Monterey ... Mary Martin's calling her autobiography "My Heart Belongs" ... to everybody.

Robert Shaw, who got $60,000 for "The Sting," jumped to tax-burdened superstardom via "Jaws." He's getting $500,000 for "Robin and Marian" ... Columbia's "Lies My Father Told Me" premieres in N.Y. shortly but author Ted Allen can't make it: he feel off a stage in Toronto and broke his bleep ... Britain's Lord Cowdray plans a big lawsuit against Playboy; something about a cartoon including his name.

Robert Patrick, whose "Kennedy's Children" is a London hit due shortly on Bdw., previously wrote more than 100 plays for off-off Bdw. The Texas-born lad couldn't get a single Bdw. producer to take it seriously; while waiting for success he lived via all manner of jobs: a miniature golf course manager, rodeo candy hawker, filing clerk in the New Mexico State Commission on Alcoholism, waiter, dishwasher, bill collector for a publisher, furniture installer in new office buildings, decorator of banks and churches at Christmas, canvas stretcher for an art store, coder for a market research firm, drugstore delivery boy, and "Most memorably," he said, "an autopsy typist."

ABOUT AN EPICUREAN SAFARI ... Dining at "Selecta," 6 miles south of Stroudsburg, is like going to a private party abroad. The yellow sign on Rt. 191 reads only: "SELECTA (215) 588-1042 Rijstafel." A shale driveway leads through woods to a field-stone mansion, the parking lot studded with out-of-state cars.

The host, a spice-importer from Java, introduces the gourmets in the oak-beamed Rattan Bar. Except for stubborn martini-drinkers, most enjoy the "Selecta," exotic-blue House Specialty. The restaurant features an authentic Indonesian Rice-Table buffet on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings, by reservation only. Other cuisine may be ordered ahead. Private parties of 8 or more on other days. Phone for mailing of information/menu card.

There are no secrets from Johnny. His popularity, golfing excellence and reputation put him firmly in the community. "I know what he's talking about," says a newspaper carrier. "He has the quality. Dedication, helpfulness, and a good sense of humor."

W. Virginia trip test of Ford, Secret Service mettle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It began on the Elkins High School football field with President Ford trying mightily to enthuse over a coonskin cap presented him by Rep. Harley Staggers.

It ended 47 minutes late at the end of a 1.3 mile parade between what Randolph County sheriff Philip Ware insisted were nothing but 125,000 good-hearted folk come to the West Virginia Mountain State Festival Parade to cheer their President.

But being his first public outing since being shot at Sept. 22 in San Francisco, it also tested the Secret Service security and Ford's mettle.

Ford handed the coonskin cap to aide Terry O'Donnell and climbed into the $500,000 bubble top limousine rebuilt on the chassis on the car in which John F. Kennedy was assassinated. He tapped the closed, sliding sunroof and settled back beside Sen. Jennings Randolph.

The black car swung in ahead of the Elkins High School band. The open limousine carried six Secret Servicemen, presidential physician William Lukash, and a submarine.

About 18 other Secret Servicemen, at times intermingled with the six blonde high school majorettes and two clowns, walked alongside Ford's car. The cheering began.

Ford almost pushed his nose up against the bulletproof glass in his eagerness to respond. His mouth opened and closed but no words could be heard. He waved.

The crowd made its clapping, whistling sounds as the vehicle pushed ahead at what White House advanceman Pappy Noel called "a good three-mile an hour parade speed."

Ford, although conscious of the caution counseled by his wife, his advisers, congressmen and the press, obviously itched to penetrate the barrier between him and the people.

A block from the high school the sunroof slid back. Ford's fingers could be seen waving out in the free air.

The car had reached the Tri-County Heating & Supply Company when Ford turned to Randolph and said, "I want to stand up!"

Randolph, sure of his mountain folk, said "You're the President!"

Ford stood and the crowds five and six deep outside Bob's Furniture store cheered wildly at the sight.

Up went Ford's right arm as the vehicle passed Veterans

Electric Store.

There were no crowds on the bridge over the town river for security purposes, so Ford sat back down.

But on the other side, outside the Valley Furniture Store, he stood again and thrust both hands up in a victory salute.

The crowd outside the Harper's Sewing Shop jumped and shouted.

Ford was in center of Main Street by now, outside Moose Lodge 375 which bore a unfolded cardboard box decorated with crude letters spelling "Welcome President Ford."

Behind him the band played, but the crowds outside Camilla's Beauty Shop and Mano's movie theatre all but drowned out the music.

The car stopped. O'Donnell said they had reached the part of the parade route held safe for a presidential walk.

Ford popped out and twelve Secret Servicemen swung around him in a 180 degree arc. Ford began shaking hands.

There were no untoward incidents.

The first test of the public President after San Francisco had succeed.

Cancer fighters powerful

WASHINGTON (UPI) — No cause has a more powerful or personal lobby in the Senate than the crusade against cancer.

Its influence was tested again recently when Sens. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., and Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., sought to cut $100 million from appropriations for National Cancer Institute and $50 million from the National Heart Institute.

Neither Cranston nor Nelson are against the scientific war to subdue cancer.

The aim of their amendment to the $45.1 billion HEW appropriations bill — shared by many in the medical community — was to bring a closer balance between federal funds spent on cancer and heart-lung research and the much smaller amounts devoted to other diseases.

"If we could have our druthers," Nelson exclaimed, "I would say let us give a billion to cancer and another billion to the other institutes."

But Nelson said Congress does not have that choice and warned that "what is happening is that in the competition for money, we are dramatically expanding support for cancer and lung at the expense of the other institutes."

But the business-like approach of Cranston and Nelson was no match for the emotions stirred by cancer — especially among senators who have had a brush with the disease.

Whether by accident or design, a number of senators who made speeches opposing the Cranston-Nelson amendment had family hit by cancer. Only Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., mentioned it, however.

"To be totally honest and aboveboard with my colleagues, I confess I come into this with a decided conflict of interest."

Then Bayh told his colleagues that his mother died of cancer when he was eight and that his wife underwent successful surgery for cancer four years ago.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., floor managing the bill, said "It is a little hard for me to be quite objective about the matter of cancer, for many reasons."

One reason is that his wife was struck by the disease.

Nor could some others who spoke be any more unemotional than Magnuson.

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., his wife suffered from cancer. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., his son Teddy lost a leg to cancer; Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., he underwent treatment for cancer.

Magnuson added "I will bet half of the Senate has brushed shoulders with some form, indirectly or directly, with cancer."
